Testimony by Hunt despite arguments

WASHINGTON (AP) — E. Howard Hunt Jr., the foreman of the Watergate burglary team, testified in the Watergate cover-up trial today after the court adopted him as its own witness because the prosecution would not vouch for his credibility.

Hunt began his testimony by saying that fellow Watergate break-in conspirator G. Gordon Liddy asked his help in December 1971 and January 1972 "to help prepare a budget related to certain projects desired by the then-attorney general (John Mitchell), Mr. John Dean and Mr. Jeb Stuart Magruder."

That project resulted in two break-ins at the Democratic party national headquarters in the Watergate building in Washington and the wiretapping of some phones there.

Hunt and four others pleaded guilty to charges stemming from a break-in at Democratic headquarters on June 17, 1972, to repair a faulty wiretap.

Before Hunt took the stand defense lawyers argued for an hour that he should not be called as a court witness, a procedure that allows both sides to ask leading questions.

Such questions normally are not permitted in direct examination.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica first read brief instructions to the jury telling them that "like other witnesses, he must take the oath and must answer all questions put to him truthfully" and that the only difference in the status of court witness is the waiver of the leading questions rule.

Hunt, who headed the Watergate burglary team, was the second witness called in the trial of H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, John N. Mitchell, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, all former White House or campaign aides to ex-President Richard M. Nixon. All are charged with conspiring to obstruct justice in the Watergate investigation.

As the Watergate cover-up trial entered the fifth week defense lawyers strenuously objected to using the court witness procedure to obtain what they contend will be unreliable testimony.

Haldeman's lawyer, John J. Wilson, was especially vehement about instructions to the jury on the procedure of calling court witnesses.

"I have never read such a startling charge in my life," Wilson said. "It's deceptive. It's not honest."

Plato Cacheris, one of Mitchell's lawyers, called the procedure an "improper influence on the jury. I therefore resist it and resist it vigorously."

Richard Ben-Veniste, an assistant prosecutor who Hunt claims tried to get him to commit perjury, said there are numerous instances before the grand jury when Hunt lied and that the court witness device would permit leading questions to bring out Hunt's motivations to testify falsely.

David G. Bress, representing Mardian, said what the prosecution was proposing was to "say they have a witness who will make out their case but that witness is a liar."

And chief prosecutor James F. Neal said that the government's theory in the case is "that the defendants conspired to pay money ... to Mr. Hunt to keep him from telling what he knows." He said it was necessary to probe exactly what it was that Hunt knew.

At that point Sirica said he would allow Hunt to testify as a court witness.

The government told U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica last week that Hunt had not been "entirely candid" with the grand jury and asked that he be called as a court witness, subject to cross-examination from both prosecution and defense.

"Even after being granted immunity, Mr. Hunt cooperated with the investigation only grudgingly and, we believe, incompletely," the government told Sirica.

Chipping away the remains

Mark Epstein, 306 East Second, was hired by Ken Heimsoth to help salvage bricks from the ruins of the old Sedalia high school and business college, Sixth and Massachusetts, which was destroyed by fire over four weeks ago. Heimsoth said that he has bought the bricks as an investment. Epstein didn't seem to let Monday's rainy weather bother him as he continued to work with his hatchet.

'Silent heroes' saluted by Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, in a Veterans Day address today, saluted "the silent heroes" of Vietnam and urged Americans to "strengthen our resolve to always walk the extra mile for peace ... strong and unafraid."

" ... Without amighty America no peace can long survive," Ford said in wreath laying ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery.

Standing near the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and looking over a green hillside dotted with white markers bearing the names of war dead, Ford said, "Let us make sure the debt we owe to so many is honored."

He singled out Vietnam veterans, saying, "they served in spite of the most difficult psychological pressures ... at a time when many of their peers and elders were denouncing service to one's country as immoral."

"They served while some avoided service," the President continued. "They served without the full moral support that this nation has usually given its fighting forces."

"They are the silent heroes of their generation ... I intend to see that the silent heroes, the more than 6½ million Americans who served their country in the Vietnam era with quiet courage, are not forgotten," Ford said.

To the families and friends of men still missing in action, Ford said, "I make this pledge: I will do everything possible to resolve the uncertainty of their status."

The President said important progress is being made in reducing the number of Vietnam veterans without jobs. He said a governmental task force has proposed an action plan to hire into the government at least 70,000 Vietnam veterans during the current fiscal year.

He said he has studied a report to him on Veterans Administration hospitals made public Saturday "and I am frank to admit that real problems exist."

The President said he has asked VA Administrator Richard L. Roudebush "to let me know what is needed to eliminate these problems" and said he is determined "to do everything I can to make a good system even better."

Kissinger asks India for nuclear cooperation

NEW DELHI, India (ap) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger called on India today to cooperate with international efforts to block the spread of nuclear weapons.

"We take seriously India's affirmation that it has no intention to develop nuclear weapons," he said in a carefully worded speech before the Indian Council of World Affairs. "But India of course has the capability to export nuclear technology. It, therefore, has an important role in this multilateral endeavor."

The Indian government exploded an underground nuclear device May 18, joining Britain, France, China, the United States and the Soviet Union in the exclusive club of nuclear powers.

Since then, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi repeatedly has promised India will use its new nuclear power only for peaceful purposes. But her pledges have been greeted with scepticism in many quarters, including Washington.

Mrs. Gandhi gave Kissinger a frosty reception at the start of his visit, which is aimed at mending relations between the United States and India. But later they both agreed that those relations are "on the way up."

Kissinger's comments on nuclear proliferation were designed, according to U.S. officials, as the secretary's major public address during his three-day reconciliation visit to India.

Kissinger was reported to have carried a similar message to Mrs. Gandhi during his talks with her and Foreign Minister Y. B. Chavan earlier today. Kissinger and Mrs. Gandhi expressed confidence as they entered the talks that Indo-American relations were improving.

Before Kissinger arrived at her office, Mrs. Gandhi told newsmen that "with any two countries, any two individuals, things go up and down." But, she said, relations with the United States are "on the way up." They "are good, and we want to make them better."

"I agree with that completely," Kissinger said. "Relations are on the way up."

In an interview published a few hours before Kissinger's arrival from Moscow, Sunday, Mrs. Gandhi said the Indian government had "always tried for good relations with the Americans" but unfortunately they have regarded India as marginal to their global strategy ..."

India has particularly been irked by the U.S. "tilt" toward Pakistan in the 1971 war that gave birth to Bangladesh. Kissinger is also trying to coax India away from the Soviet Union, which has shipped India an estimated $1.75 billion worth of arms.

Chavan at a banquet in honor of Kissinger Sunday night noted that relations between the two countries "have improved in the last year or two.

"Although it would be idle to pretend that there are no differences between us, we both recognize the need for building up a mature and constructive relationship on the basis of equality, mutual respect and mutual benefit."

With prisoners

No real negotiations

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Police today installed a field telephone link with a prison chapel where four armed inmates held 17 persons hostage. The Dutch cabinet met in special session on the case, but a lengthy ordeal appeared in prospect. The rebellious convicts, who include a convicted Palestinian airplane hijacker, asked for and were given coffee and a coat for an 11-year-old boy hostage. But the Justice Ministry said there were no real negotiations under way more than 40 hours after the drama began.

On Sunday, the four released a man, a woman and three children from the 22 hostages they took when they interrupted a Saturday night Mass at the chapel of Scheveningen Penitentiary. Dutch authorities were holding out on negotiations until the convicts released two more women and the boy, leaving as hostages only male members of a volunteer civilian choir.

Prison officials already had delivered food, mattresses, pillows, blankets and three decks of cards into the chapel. They said most of those inside appeared to have slept until 5 a.m. today, when the convicts asked for the coffee and clothes.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said it appeared from radio contacts that relations among the convicts were good despite language difficulties. In addition to the Arab, they are two Dutchmen and an Algerian.

The gunmen had complained of poor reception on walkie-talkie radios they took from two captive wardens. At one point, police used a megaphone.

They also were supplied with Dutch newspapers. One, De Telegraaf, reported that colleagues of the Rev. Antonius de Bot, 59, a Roman Catholic priest among the hostages, had told a friend some time ago:

"Sooner or later, something horrible is going to happen." The priest reportedly talked often about discontent among the prisoners.

Interior Minister Willem de Gaay Fortman said the demands of the convicts were still vague. But one concrete demand was that another Palestinian guerrilla in the prison be allowed to join them.

Arabs discuss use of oil weapon again

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Arab ministers discussed using the oil weapon against the West again and "sought to establish a joint position in response to the threats of the oil consuming countries," the official Moroccan news agency said today.

No details were disclosed, but officials said the "threats" included recent statements by President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that the major oil consumers regard the continued flow of oil from their main sources of supply a vital interest.

The oil ministers of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Algeria, Qatar, Bahrein and the United Arab Emirates met Sunday on the sidelines of the Arab summit, which has bogged down over the rival claims of Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organization to future control of the west bank of the Jordan River.

The summit reconvened today with Jordan and the PLO still at an impasse.

"It is either the PLO or Jordan," said spokesmen for King Hussein and guerrilla chieftain Yasir Arafat, using identical words. Both insisted the conference must choose between them.

"The PLO rejects the right of Jordan to represent any part of Palestinian territory at any time and under any circumstances, including withdrawal negotiations," PLO spokesman Yasser Abd Rabbo declared.

The three-day conference was to have ended today, but it may be extended another day.

The West Bank territory was taken by Jordan in the 1948 Palestine War and held until Israel occupied it in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War. Hussein demands that it be returned to him if Israel gives it up and insists that meanwhile only he can negotiate with Israel on behalf of the Palestinians living on both sides of the Jordan. Israel agrees with this position and refuses to negotiate with the PLO.

Arafat and the PLO claim that they are the legitimate representatives of the Palestinian people. But Hussein contends that they only represent the Palestinians in refugee camps in Lebanon and Syria and those who have emigrated to other Arab countries. However, Hussein has pledged to let the Palestinians in the Jordan Valley determine their future in a referendum after Israel relinquishes the West Bank.

Hussein also has warned that he will boycott any Arab-Israeli peace talks if the summit meeting designates the PLO spokesman for the West Bank Palestinians.

Insurance fraud scheme uncovered

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A suspected scheme by doctors to defraud insurance companies by reporting fake illnesses has been uncovered in the St. Louis area, Missouri Insurance Supt. Edward G. Farmer said today.

"Fraud is the word," Farmer said. "We'll name the dates, places and doctors."

He would not reveal any dates, places or names at this time, however.

Farmer said 33 insurance companies and about 40 persons were involved, although he didn't know exactly how many doctors were involved.

"We're working closely with the U. S. Attorney," he said. "It could be a $3 million to $30 million loss. It's nationwide...we want to scare these people so they won't do it again."

The investigation had not uncovered any similar incidents in Missouri other than in the St. Louis area.

Reporters for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat posed as patients and the doctors filled out medical insurance forms, a Division of Insurance spokesman said.

The Globe reporters helped Insurance Division agent Pete Dakarus and other agents on the eight-month investigation. The investigation was disclosed today in the first of about eight planned articles, Farmer said.

Farmer said the Insurance Division got onto the scheme through a complaint with his office.

Farmer said the alleged injuries, usually to the back or neck, were the kind difficult to diagnose and contest in court, often reportedly resulting from a fall.

A physician would back the false insurance claim, Farmer said. The doctor would admit a policyholder to a hospital and receive fees from the patient and group insurance payments.

Miller hearing will be held in courthouse

A public hearing on charges to remove suspended Police Chief William E. Miller from office will begin at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Pettis County Circuit Court chambers.

The hearing had originally been scheduled to be conducted in the City Council chambers at the Municipal Building, but the change was requested by the attorneys for both sides, according to Mayor Jerry Jones.

Circuit Judge Frank Meyer's docket has been cleared to make the courtroom available into Thursday, if necessary.

The administrative hearing, which will in effect be an impeachment procedure, will consider the 10 charges against Miller made public by Jones on Oct. 9. An amended charge was added Wednesday.

Although the hearing will be conducted in the manner of a trial, strict judicial rules of evidence will not apply. As mayor, Jones said he will be the presiding officer and will be advised on legal points by City Counselor Bob Fritz. Jones presumably would rule on points of dispute between the prosecution and defense.

The city's case will be handled by special counsel William F. Brown, and will be presented first. Robert Wesner will defend Miller. Both sides are expected to call numerous witnesses.

Witnesses will be sworn by Circuit Court Reporter Jim Giokaris, who will also keep the transcript.

Tuesday night's session will run until 10 p.m. The hearing will resume at 10 a.m. Wednesday and run until 5 p.m. If more time is required, the hearing will resume Thursday morning.

Smoking is hang-up of mind and body

Dear Ann Landers: You said in your column a while back that cigarette smokers are engaging in oral satisfaction that stems from an infantile and immature need.

Did you know that Dr. Sigmund Freud was unable to quit smoking — although he was well aware that his tobacco habit was extremely damaging to his health — because of certain physical disabilities which plagued him for years?

Freud's efforts to stop smoking lasted for nearly a half a century. He recounts his persistent craving and the "torture beyond human endurance" when he did abstain for a period of 14 months. Freud was, after all, a mortal man, but don't you think the father of psychoanalysis would have recognized the existence of a psychological problem, if there had been one?

What is there in tobacco that produces the craving? It is nicotine — and nicotine is habit-forming. I submit, the habit is more physiological than psychological, a problem of the body rather than the mind. — Another View

Dear View: You cannot separate the mind from the body. They are one.

Of course nicotine is addictive. So is alcohol. But no one knows why some people can use both in moderation and others cannot. The best authorities say the problem is both physical and emotional — but mostly emotional.

As for Uncle Sigmund, he had many hangups and suffered a great deal. Among other things, he was through with sex at 41. Well-balanced, he wasn't.

Dear Ann Landers: I was annoyed with your lack of support for the person who wrote about the miracles of witchcraft. Have you been living in a cave for the past ten years? Haven't you read about the miraculous things witches have done — both in laying on curses and removing them?

My sister-in-law, whose hands were covered with warts, went to a woman who practiced witchcraft. Within three weeks every one of those warts disappeared. And all she did was rub a little castor oil on them at night. Her son went to the witch the following month and was relieved of a terrible pain in his neck within four days. How do you account for these happenings? — A Believer

Dear B.: Any dermatologist will tell you that warts can be gotten rid of WITHOUT a witch if you put your mind to it and rub a little something on them at night.

As for her getting rid of the pain in his neck within four days — maybe his sister-in-law left town, or his boss took a trip.

Many aches and pains — and even diseases — are self-limiting. They disappear without treatment. And this is why I tell people to get another opinion before they agree to surgery. There are too many unnecessary operations performed in this country.

Dear Ann Landers: Do you have room in your column for one more letter on Kid's Lib? When I read that 13-year-old boy's letter I almost threw up.

I am 13 and that letter went all over our classroom. Almost all the kids agreed your answer was great. The two who thought you were too strict are in trouble all the time.

We are liberated enough — in fact, some of us are TOO liberated. We wish our parents would take us off the hook by saying "NO!" so we wouldn't be called chicken when we don't want to do certain things. Thanks, Ann. — For You

Dear For: You're welcome. I'm for you, too.

Benton County to receive funds for law enforcement

WARSAW — Benton County will receive $15,008 in 1975 for radio equipment, manpower and training for the area's law enforcement officials.

According to the Kaysinger Basin Law Enforcement Assistance Council, the county will provide $4,301, with the federal government providing the remaining $10,707.

The largest amount of money, $8,442, will go directly to the county for two investigators for the prosecuting attorney's office and monitors for the sheriff's department. These federal funds will be matched by county funds of $3,393.

Warsaw will use its $940 in federal funds and $377 in local funds to purchase a four-frequency mobile radio for the police car.

Cole Camp and Lincoln will also be using their money to purchase radios and for training.

Benton County has earmarked $734 for planning purposes to expand and upgrade the area's criminal justice system.

The federal money is expected within a matter of weeks, according to Guy Morice, KBLEAC coordinator.

Petroleum profits not credited for earnings

NEW YORK (AP) — First National City Bank of New York says unusually large third quarter corporate earnings were "not the result of a surge in petroleum profits."

Citibank's economists said Sunday in a preliminary analysis of after-tax profits of 853 corporations that the increases over the earnings reported in the third quarter a year ago "almost entirely reflected inflated dollar volume, not higher profit margins," and were not distributed evenly over the 30 industry groups studied.

The 13 petroleum firms studied had a total profit of $1.670 billion and accounted for almost 18 per cent of the total profit of $9.296 billion reported by all the firms.

However, the petroleum industry had an average earnings increase of 45 per cent, lower than eight other industry groups.

By group, the industries leading the list of gainers were:

Common carrier trucking, up 209 per cent from the third quarter of 1973; iron and steel, up 175 per cent; other transportations, up 152 per cent; nonferrous metals, up 105 per cent; paper, up 67 per cent, and chemicals, up 66 per cent.

Five industry groups earned less in the third quarter of 1974 than they did a year earlier:

Aerospace, down 21 per cent; electrical equipment and electronics, down 11 per cent; instruments and photo goods, down 8 per cent; other manufacturing, down 6 per cent, and textiles, down 5 per cent.

In the first half of 1974 there was an average 23 per cent gain in profits among the companies studied, but there was an average increase of 28 per cent over the third quarter of this year.

Citibank said petroleum profits actually went down to 45 per cent from 55 per cent for the same 13 companies in the first half.

New school of medicine dedicated

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The new $13.3 million University of Missouri School of Medicine was dedicated here Sunday with medical, educational and civic leaders reliving 25 years of dreaming and planning that preceded the dedication.

Dr. Ward Darley, president emeritus of the University of Colorado, spoke to about 1,000 persons at the dedication of the five-story structure on Hospital Hill, at the southern edge of the downtown area.

He said the increasing effectiveness of medicine over the years has led to an increase in society's expectations of medicine.

"The time has come," he said in prepared remarks, "for recognition of the fact that both medicine and government are complex social institutions that must serve as social instruments and that in order to fill their respective roles, the two must find common ground upon which one can augment the other."

He said the complexities of medical care arising from the phenomenon of government in medicine have added to the complexities of medical education. He said he considered the UMKC Medical School to be far advanced in meeting the wide range of challenges facing American medical education.

Campaign expenditures reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The political trust run by the AFL-CIO has spent $1.4 million on politics this year, its latest campaign finance reports show.

The national trust run by the American Medical Association has spent $792,697 in the same period, and its 38 state committees have spent additional sums.

The AMA's spending is followed by that of the United Auto Workers union, which has spent $763,395 this year.

These were the largest totals spotted in a review of the latest campaign finance reports, which arrived in Washington last week. The reports cover the period between Sept. 1 and Oct. 14, and give totals for the year so far. Another wave of reports is due late this week, covering all but the final week and a half before the Nov. 5 election.

A number of other groups have spent more than half a million dollars so far this year. They include the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, $516,975; The Machinists union, $500,690; The Maritime Engineers union, $552,059; and the California Teachers Association, $576,966.

Those spending more than a quarter-million dollars include the Steelworkers union, $297,317; the Railway Clerks union, $251,909; the trust run by real estate dealers, $272,092; and the trust established by the National Association of Manufacturers, $257,996. A trust run by California dentists has spent $311,845, more than half of it given to state-level candidates.

The listing is not comprehensive because some reports are tardy, and because some groups such as the Teamsters and the AMA give money through a welter of state and local committees that makes the bookkeeping complicated. But the list gives some idea of which groups are spending large sums to influence this year's congressional and state elections.

The largest single gift spotted in the current flock of reports was $40,000 from the garment workers to Hugh L. Carey, the Democratic candidate for governor of New York.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., got $15,000 from the Auto Workers and another $15,000 from the Retail Clerks union.

The AFL-CIO passed out gifts of $10,000 each to Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Gary Hart, the former McGovern campaign manager who is running for the Senate in Colorado. Magnuson now has received a total of $20,000 from the AFL-CIO.

The Auto Workers gave two gifts totaling $19,000 to Democratic Rep. Richard F. Vander Veen, who won a special election earlier this year to replace the seat left vacant when Gerald R. Ford became vice president.

The Auto Workers also gave two donations totaling $17,000 to John S. Reuther, Democratic candidate for congress against Rep. Marvin L. Esch, R-Mich., of Ann Arbor. Reuther is a nephew of the late Walter Reuther, founder of the union.

The Auto Workers also gave gifts totaling $13,000 to former astronaut John Glenn, Democratic Senate candidate from Ohio.

Breast 'enlargers' don't do the job

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am a young woman of fair appearance. My problem, may not seem extremely bad, but it bothers me a lot. My breasts are quite small.

People have told me different ways to solve my problem. These include exercise and breast enlargers advertised in the back of magazines.

I have tried the exercises and they didn't seem to work. I know it takes time, but I did do them for quite some time. Are the breast enlargers effective and are they safe? I am sure many women wonder about them.

Dear Reader — I receive an enormous amount of mail from women asking about small breasts and some asking about large breasts, and even some worrying about unequal breasts. So, you are not unusual.

The only exercises that are useful in increasing the bustline are those that increase the muscles of the chest wall. These muscles are the pectoral muscles under the breast itself.

I have looked into the various devices advertised for use in breast enlargement programs. Some of these are stimulating, like a skin bracer and the action may stimulate the skin just as a facial massage does, but none, and I mean NONE, of these or the creams do anything to actually enlarge the breast itself. They do enlarge the fat pocketbooks of the people are who are taking advantage of women's desire to be more attractive.

Some of the programs to enlarge breasts do have some good features, the exercises and the diet programs, but neither a device nor a cream is one of the good features.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Can you advise me if a slant board is in any way beneficial to a woman as an aid in filling out wrinkles in the face and neck? I have often read articles stating that by lying on a slant board 10 minutes a day, the blood rushes to the head and helps to prevent the aging process.

Dear Reader — It has no useful affect. If you hung your head down you could get some swelling, just as you can get swelling of the feet and ankles from being on your feet all day. The effect would be transitory swelling. You can see a variation of this in the puffy appearance around the eyes so common to many on arising in the morning.

You can get some improvement in circulation in the skin, at least temporarily, by doing exercises, particularly facial exercises or even bending exercises. You are familiar, I'm sure, with the flushed face after exercise. That is about the best you can hope for.

Improving the circulation through the skin by exercise may improve your complexion. I think facial muscle exercises are useful to a limited extent too, but a slant board will not improve circulation through the skin, on the contrary, it can result in stagnation and pooling of blood in the skin that leads to swelling. Seizure of counterfeit money largest in history

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Secret Service agents have confiscated more than $8 million worth of bogus but realistic $100 bills in what they called the largest seizure of counterfeit money in U.S. history.

Four men were arrested Sunday and booked for investigation of manufacturing and possession of counterfeit money, said Robert E. Powis, special agent in charge of the Los Angeles office of the Secret Service.

Powis described the bills as being "definitely passable. It looks like the intent was for a rather wide-scale distribution." He said the largest counterfeit seizure prior to this was a $6.1 million haul in Chattanooga, Tenn., in 1973.

He said agents acting on a tip stopped a van in suburban Lakewood and found $7.5 million worth of counterfeit bills inside. The driver of the van, Leonard O. Salmon, 39, of Lakewood, was arrested at the scene, Powis said.

A second man, Kenneth Clarence Wall, 48, of Buena Park, was arrested a short time later. Powis identified him as the owner of Gus Printing Co., of Hawaiian Gardens.

Powis identified the two others in custody as Robert James Spratte, 33, of Whittier and Sam Jackson Anders, 35, of Compton.

Agents obtained two search warrants after the arrests and searched the offices of Gus Printing and a private residence in Cerritos, Powis said. An additional $750,000 in false $100s and a number of printing plates were found at Gus Printing, he added. Powis said an offset press and charred remnants of counterfeit $5, $10 and $20 bills were found at the Cerritos residence.

Alaska's North Slope pits man against the elements

PRUDHOE BAY, Alaska (AP) — If, on that seventh day, the Creator had wanted to contemplate all the beauty of the world, he probably rested on the lonely mountaintops overlooking Alaska's North Slope.

For all those centuries between the Beginning and the Oil Rush, the only people who cast their eyes over the endless vista of land and mountains and sky were the Eskimos and Indians who lived in harmony and respectful fear of that endless terrain which slopes down to the top of the world.

Now, the white men and their machines are there in force because the children of the Industrial Revolution need what the North Slope has hidden.

Oil — billions of barrels of it — lies underneath the frozen ground waiting for those who can get it out. Predictions are that it will begin to flow south by mid-1977, south to the factories of Cleveland, the compact cars on the Pennsylvania turnpike and the outboard motors on Florida lakes.

But so far, the newcomers' presence has done little to change the face of the North Slope. About 6,000 men and women are living in 12 camps that are expanding daily north of Fairbanks. They were hired by companies under contract to the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. to build a road parallel to part of the 798-mile-long trans-Alaska pipeline route

As though in cheerful defiance of their hostile environment, the camp workers sleep and eat in little prefabricated modular compounds with names like Happy Valley, Prospect Creek, Dead Horse, Old Man and Cold Foot.

But when they go outside and into the mosquito-infested wilderness, they leave behind all traces of a portable life of modern toilets and pool tables, stainless steel kitchens and fresh donuts.

They must psychologically adjust themselves to the land, the emptiness and the arctic summer's continual sunshine, and the advancing winter.

Already many haven't been able to adjust, and have left after only a few weeks or even days. Alyeska officials cite a turnover rate of about 25 to 30 per cent.

But for those who stay, the monetary rewards are great — some pipeline workers could make $50,000 a year — and many find a personal kind of peace in the big land.

In summer, the mountains of the wild Brooks Range are naked of their arctic wrap of white. Like the spine of a hundred dinosaurs, their peaks poke the sky and stab the clouds. Their skin is bleached white as bone.

The rivers are a thousand carelessly tossed blue ribbons scattered in disarray, the lakes countless puzzle pieces dumped on a carpet.

On the slope itself, the tundra stretches out flat like a dozen Kansases laid end to end. In the midnight sun the earth is brown velvet lightly dusted with green powder. The flowers are no higher than a Marine recruit's haircut. There isn't a single tree.

The gravel road being built between the Yukon River and the Prudhoe Bay oil fields on the edge of the Arctic Ocean looks like a slender string dropped across the tundra by a forgetful giant.

The 360-mile pipeline road, once it's turned over to the state, will open up the North Slope to the outside world and, for the first time ever, provide an entry route for anyone who has wheels and wants to come.

It is hard to imagine the North Slope on the verge of tourism and all that it implies.

The tundra is as delicate as a Caribbean beach. The gentle touch of a caribou hoof will leave an imprint for days. The heavy tread of a construction truck could scar for years, destroying the protective tundra and allowing the permafrost only a few feet below the surface to melt, thus triggering a massive erosion process which feeds off itself.

"It's sure a pretty piece of real estate right now," said the helicopter pilot dryly as he hovered his whirring machine a few feet above the little knoll near the Sagavanirktok, or Swift, River. "Being out here is something you feel, but it's hard to explain, to put into regular words."

Mike Carroll, 28, has been flying the North Slope for two years. He ferries construction workers from site to site along the pipeline route above the Yukon, and spends hours staring at the landscape around him. Every three weeks the Vietnam veteran heads home to Anchorage to his wife and two children for a few days, but says he doesn't mind coming back to the North Slope when his leave is over.

"This is still one of the last few places on earth where it is truly man against the elements," said Carroll, squinting into the sky. "If anything's going to get you, the weather will get you first. One minute it can be completely clear, the next the snowflakes will be hitting the windshield as big as silver dollars.

"But you can see sheep and moose and bears, tiny little flowers which don't bloom anywhere else, water as clear as glass, and not enough people to bother you. I think it takes a special kind of person to stick it out. But it's an experience which would be unique among any other in a person's life."

Three women seek one post

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The male chauvinist voter in south St. Louis hasn't a chance Nov. 5. Any way he casts his ballot, he'll send a woman to Congress.

The contest for Missouri's 3rd District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives is the nation's only three-way ladies' race, with incumbent Democrat Leonor K. Sullivan facing opposition from Jo Ann P. Raisch, a Republican, and Marie S. Nowak, an independent.

"I think it might be a more interesting race having all women," says Mrs. Raisch, a 38-year-old mother of two teenage boys. Politics is not new to her family. Her husband William is seeking his third term as a state representative.

"People are tired of the old-time politician. People want someone refreshing; they want someone new; they want someone young," Mrs. Raisch says.

"That's the usual thing they (opponents) say, "according to Mrs. Sullivan, who is Missouri's first and only congresswoman.

"If I can't carry on, you'll never see me run for Congress. I think you're as old as you feel," says Mrs. Sullivan, who does not look her 72 years.

She was first elected in 1952 to fill the seat of her late husband and has been returned to Congress for 11 consecutive terms.

"I think 22 years in office is too long," says Mrs. Nowak, a 54-year-old eighth grade mathematics teacher.

"No one seems to believe anybody. It seems like there's such a lack of confidence and faith in the government. I think the only way to restore that is to get some ordinary citizens — those who don't owe anybody any favors," Mrs. Nowak says.

The district, which covers south St. Louis City and south St. Louis County, is populated mostly by middle-class whites.

For Mrs. Sullivan, it's the first time she's ever been opposed by one member of her sex, much less two, but the veteran Democrat contends it will make no difference. She says Mrs. Nowak, as an independent, will take votes away from the GOP candidate.

Mrs. Raisch disagrees, saying the independent will cut into Mrs. Sullivan's strength, while Mrs. Nowak contends that disenchanted or undecided voters will line up behind her, deserting both political parties.

Both Mrs. Raisch and Mrs. Nowak have two children each, while Mrs. Sullivan has none. Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Nowak are widows.

Mrs. Sullivan says she has budgeted between $20,000 and $30,000 for this year's campaign, which is relying on the mailing of literature.

The door-to-door methods employed by Mrs. Raisch will cost her $2,200, according to her estimates.

Mrs. Nowak says she receives volunteer, after-school assistance from a core of about 25 of her pupils and that she expects her drive will set her back $3,000 or $4,000.

Say water system now threatened

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Mayor Neil Goldschmidt has refused comment on a published report that an extortionist named "J. Hawker" has threatened to damage the city's water system unless he is paid $1 million. Earlier, a letter signed "J. Hawker" threatened destruction of area power lines unless $1 million was paid.

In today's editions, The Oregonian reported that in a letter received by the FBI here Oct. 22 an extortionist threatened to start a forest fire near the city's Bull Run reservoir.

"I wouldn't have any comment on that," said Goldschmidt, reached at his office Sunday night.

The newspaper said it learned of the threat the night the letter was received but withheld the information because it wanted to give authorities time to contact or apprehend the sender.

City officials have taken emergency precautionary measures to guard the entire water system, in spite of the apparent threat only against Bull Run.

In a letter sent to the FBI on Oct. 18, a "J. Hawker" claimed responsibility for dynamite blasts that caused $175,000 damage to 11 Bonneville Power Administration towers between Sept. 26 and Oct. 16. The letter threatened more damage unless $1 million was paid. The administration refused the demand and offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the extortionist.

There have been no significant power outages.

Mrs. Trudeau relates her psychiatric problems

TORONTO, Ontario (AP) — Margaret Trudeau says the stress of being the wife of Canada's prime minister, anxiety over the birth of their second child and her first active political campaign all contributed to the mental troubles that sent her to the hospital last month for psychiatric care.

She was not ready to be Canada's first lady when she married Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau in 1971 and the marriage was "a total catastrophe in terms of my identity," she said in a television interview Sunday.

She added: "I prepared myself for my marriage to Pierre Trudeau, but I didn't prepare myself for my marriage to the prime minister."

She was 22 then and Trudeau was 51.

Mrs. Trudeau, who says she is still a "flower child," said loss of freedom is one of the worst problems of life in the executive mansion in Ottawa.

"It's like being a prisoner because I'm never alone, except inside the house," she said.

"It's certainly not the glamorous, exciting life that most people think it is. It's a lonely life. It's not a free life — but it's a good life."

She said that following the birth of their second son last Christmas, she experienced postnatal depression. She said she hadn't had time to feel the "responsibility of another life."

Mrs. Trudeau said that campaigning with her husband before the election last July left her feeling "very, very weary and very emotionally tight." She said she was "reaching kind of a crisis stage" when she entered a Montreal hospital for treatment of severe emotional stress.

Seeking psychiatric care should not carry a social stigma, she said. "We're willing to run to a doctor if we've got a cold, for heaven's sake, but if there's something desperately the matter with our mental health ... we're so afraid to say we need some help."

The greatest reported distance for throwing a standard five-pound brick is 135 feet 8 inches by Robert Gardner of Gloucestershire, England, in 1970.

Goals of terrorists supported

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 15,000 persons at a Madison Square Garden rally for Puerto Rican independence heard speakers, including actress Jane Fonda and Communist activist Angela Davis, support the professed goals of terrorists who bombed several Manhattan banks last weekend.

A number of the speakers at the Sunday gathering also said that they had no quarrel with the terrorists' methods.

"There is a diversity of forms and means by which the Puerto Rican people struggle for independence and national liberation. This is one of the means," said Juan Mari Bras, secretary-general of the Puerto Rican Socialist party. "I do not condemn it."

At a news conference after the rally, Mari Bras was joined by Ms. Fonda, Ms. Davis and others. When asked to comment on the bombings, Irwin Silber, editor of the Radical Guardian, said Mari Bras had expressed the views of those present.

The terrorists said the bombings were to show support for Puerto Rican independence and release of Puerto Rican "political" prisoners in the United States.

Mari Bras disavowed any knowledge of those responsible for the Saturday morning bombings, in which there were no deaths or injuries.

In a letter to The Associated Press the terrorists, calling themselves the Armed Forces of National Liberation—FALN—expressed support for the rally as "a significant step in the formation of an anti-imperialist front in the United States."

The promoters of the event denied any connection with the blasts.

"It wasn't our people who did this," said Jose Manuel Navarro of the Puerto Rican Solidarity Day Committee. He added, "I can't say anything else."

Among the demands of the FALN was the release of five Puerto Ricans serving jail terms for the 1950 attempted assassination of President Harry S.Truman and the 1954 shooting of five congressmen.

The audience enthusiatically raised clenched fists and occasionally interrupted the speakers to chant political slogans in Spanish, but they booed Angela Davis when she mentioned "my party, the Communist party."

Teamsters are striking at Milgram stores

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Teamsters struck more than 40 Milgram Food Stores and warehouses Sunday night, saying the walkout would spread to other grocery chains this week unless a settlement is reached on a new contract.

Teamsters Union Local No. 955 has voted to also strike Safeway Stores, Inc.; Fleming Companies, Inc., and Associated Wholesale Grocers. Fleming distributes food products to individually owned United Super stores. Associated Grocers serves more than 500 individually owned and chain stores, including those owned in this area by the Kroger Company.

Only A & P Food Stores have escaped a strike vote thus far, but there were indications Sunday night that chain might also face a stoppage if no settlement is reached soon.

Union and management officials and a spokesman for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said Sunday night no meetings had been scheduled to reopen negotiations.

The strike against Milgrams came following rejection of the company's latest contract offer.

As many as 1,000 warehousemen and truck drivers would be directly affected by a stoppage at all chains. Another 6,000 workers in the grocery chains would be affected if they honored picket lines.

Destination of extra calves not decided

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP)— Some 100 calves donated by the National Farmers Organization (NFO) were slaughtered by Dubuque Packing Co. workers Monday—but the firm doesn't know what to do with them.

The calves were left over from Saturday's slaughter when 551 NFO vealers were butchered for shipment to hurricane victims in Honduras.

About 41,000 pounds of veal from Saturday's kill were loaded onto trucks Monday for shipment to Miami, where the meat will be loaded onto a refrigerated ship headed for Honduras.

"We slaughtered the leftovers this morning, but the NFO hasn't told us what to do with them," said Robert H. Wahlert, Dubuque Packing vice president. "We've been deluged with telephone calls from charitable organizations asking for the meat."

Before Saturday's slaughter, NFO leaders indicated they would donate any late-arriving calves to U.S. organizations. A California boys' home reportedly may receive the meat, but no final decision has been made according to Wisconsin NFO treasurer Jim Runde of Cuba City, Wis.

The NFO had predicted that farmers would donate 1,000 calves to draw attention to low farm prices, but the packing company received only 651.

Two weeks ago, NFO members shot and buried 636 calves at Curtiss, Wis. in a similar protest.

Kennedy tells story of accident

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says that after Mary Jo Kopechne drowned at Chappaquiddick, he hoped for several hours that she had somehow survived.

Kennedy, in the second part of a copyright interview published today in the Boston Globe, explained his actions after the accident five years ago.

Kennedy did not report the accident until about eight hours after his car plunged off a narrow bridge into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island.

When asked about it by friends, Kennedy said he told them about "my own anguish and anxiety of that evening, the thoughts that went through my mind, my sense and feeling that somehow it had been almost miraculous that I had escaped from that car and I had not given up hope all night long that by some miracle Mary Jo would have escaped from the car as well.

"I never recalled how I was able to get out from the car and that perhaps by some grace of God that she may have gotten out and that when the dawn came and Mary Jo actually returned to the cottage and how about—how I actually willed that all night long and how I had really hoped that was going to be the case."

Kennedy said he told two associates that he would go back to Edgartown to report the accident to police but nearly drowned when he swam the channel that separates the island from the village.

He said, "By the time that I arrived on the other shore, I was absolutely spent. Absolutely exhausted. And just saying 'I just can't do it. I just can't do it. I just can't do it.' I remember walking up toward the Shiretown Inn and walking through the front entrance and just going up to my room."

The accident occured July 18, 1969. When Kennedy dropped out of contention last month for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, he said Chappaquiddick was not a factor but would have been a campaign issue.

The accident occured after a party held on the island for young women who had worked for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. Kennedy said Miss Kopechne had asked for a ride back to her hotel in Edgartown.

"Let me say there has been a great deal of ugly speculation about the conduct of Mary Jo and myself which is completely inaccurate and completely untrue ... and the defamation or attempted defamation of her character is one of the aspects I regret most deeply," Kennedy said.

"There has been a good deal of ugly speculation of other aspects of this. I recognize that. We are talking really about a great deal of irrational behavior, which I take responsibility for ..."

Economic answers divergent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading Senate Democrat feels wage and price controls will be needed before the nation's economic problems are solved, but Treasury Secretary William E. Simon says improvement already is on its way.

Simon and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield were interviewed separately on television programs Sunday, and their views were widely divergent on a number of economic matters.

On CBS' "Face the Nation," Mansfield said "I think it is just a matter of time before we'll come to wage and price controls," because "all the elements are there for a recession which, if not corrected in time, may well plunge us deeper into an economic morass."

Simon, however on ABC's "Issues and Answers," repeated his opposition to controls, saying experience has shown they don't work.

Asked whether the worst of inflation has past, he replied: "It's difficult to say the worst has been seen," but "I frankly believe you'll begin to see specific results ... by the spring of next year."

Besides wage and price controls, Mansfield said lower interest rates are needed, as are a program of government jobs, a reconstruction finance corporation to help business and an attempt to cut energy use by 10 per cent.

He responded "Oh, yes," when asked whether gasoline should be rationed.

He also said Congress would not pass a great deal of substantive economic legislation when it returns after the November elections, that President Ford has not taken the initiative to fight inflation and that Ford's proposed 5 per cent surtax is wrong.

Simon said administration policies have to be given time to work and he said that 35 pieces of legislation have been proposed to go along with Ford's economic program.

He said gasoline rationing is not needed, and he defended the surtax proposal. Simon also said Congress would approve a windfall profits tax on excess corporation profits, but he said that many corporations appear to have excessive profits now because of inflation and outdated accounting methods.

Simon blamed much of the nation's current economic woes on excessive government spending, which he said has been the case for 14 of the past 15 years.

Rockefeller discloses money loaned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President designate Nelson A. Rockefeller said today he has made loans of $507,656 to personal friends, business associates or relatives over the past 17 years.

Rockefeller disclosed the information in letters to Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., of the Senate Rules Committee and Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., of the House Judiciary Committee.

The former New York governor is scheduled to testify before the Senate committee Nov. 13 on his earlier disclosures of nearly $2 million in gifts to public officials and staff aides during his 15 years in Albany.

The Judiciary Committee is to conduct hearings on President Ford's vice presidential nominee after the Senate panel has completed its probe.

The committee chairmen had requested a listing of Rockefeller's loans between 1957 and 1967 but Rockefeller said he was including all loans made from 1957 through Oct. 1, 1974.

"Virtually all of these loans were made to close personal friends, associates or members of my family," Rockefeller said.

Over 500 absentee ballots applied for County Clerk Mary Jane Wilson said Monday 503 applications for absentee ballots for the Nov. 5 election have been filed in Pettis County, of these 257 ballots have been returned.

Mrs. Wilson said some of the ballots are going to students, "but the majority are to people who are just going to be out of town on election day."

The deadline for getting a ballot is 4 p.m. Friday Nov. 1, by mail, and 4 p.m. Nov. 4 in person.

Mrs. Wilson said voters obtaining an absentee ballot at the courthouse can mark it in a booth outside her office, seal it and return it to her.

Weekend accidents claim eight lives on state roadways

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least eight people died in Missouri traffic accidents over the weekend.

A Des Moines, Iowa, man, Earl Henry Sievers, 52, died when his car missed a curve on a Morgan County road southwest of Versailles and overturned in a creek Sunday afternoon.

Three people were killed in a two-car crash in Jefferson County early Sunday morning. The highway patrol identified the victims as Charles M. Brawley, 50; Vilet Irene Brawley, and Robert Earl Fisher, 39, all of St. Louis. They were in a car that collided head-on with a vehicle on Missouri 21 about two miles south of Route M.

Keith G. Hellman, 16, Washington, Mo., was killed early Sunday when the car he was driving collided with another on Franklin County Route A near Missouri 100.

Kent Lee Steinkoetter, 17, Imperia, Mo., died early Sunday in a one-car accident on Jefferson County Route M.

Elsie Meteer, 80, was killed in Columbia Saturday night when she was struck by a bus while walking across a city street.

Howard Mayhew, 66, Crocker, Mo., was killed near Crocker Friday night when struck by an auto as he walked in the center of Missouri 17, police said.

Smithton youth is sentenced and placed on probation

Samuel M. Kearney, 18, Smithton was sentenced to two years imprisonment Monday in Pettis County Circuit Court and then placed on three years probation by Judge Frank Meyer.

Kearney was charged with second degree burglary of the Smithton office of Dr. John C. Brazos in July.

Charged along with Kearney in the break-in was Duane Fisher, 18, Smithton. He was sentenced and released on three years probation Sept. 17.

Kearney pleaded guilty to the charge in Circuit Court Monday after a pre-sentence report on him was filed in Circuit Court Friday afternoon by the Board of Probation.

Kearney is the son of the Smithton city marshall. His brother Michael Kearney, 17, is being held in New Mexico on charges of stealing a truck earlier this month in Sedalia. Sheriff Emmett Fairfax did not know when the younger Kearney will be brought back to Sedalia.

The younger Kearney was arrested with Carl Dalton, 17, Smithton, in New Mexico. Dalton returned to Pettis County Oct. 20 and was arraigned Oct. 21 on changes of tampering with a motor vehicle.

Doctors' offices are burglarized

Three doctors' offices were broken into at 1501 South Limit sometime Saturday night.

Police reported that entry to the building was apparently gained through a rear door to the building.

A check writer, three boxes of syringes and two bottles of drugs were taken from the offices of Dr. F. E. Manatt. No value was set for the loss.

Numerous drugs and four or five cartons of disposable needles were stolen from Dr. Clifford Katemann's offices.

The offices of Dr. J. B. Roach were ransacked by thieves but nothing was taken.

In other police news, five Sedalia men were arrested late Sunday night and charged with gambling within the city limits, police reported Monday.

James E. Stewart, 61, 110 East Pettis, William K. Patton, 62, Windsor, Harold Cruse, 49, 201 East Jefferson, Elmer N. Draffen, 61, 209 East Jackson, and James R. Cochran, 46, Columbia, were picked up by police at 201 East Main about 10:30 p.m. Sunday.

Police reported that they had been watching the building for gamblers for some time and discovered the men inside the building Sunday night.

All of these arrested were released on bond. No court date had been set for them to appear.

Police also reported that three cars were broken into while parked at Pettis and Osage Sunday night. All three of the vehicles' owners were attending a band rehearsal at the Masonic Hall, Pettis and Osage.

A tape player, 20 tapes and a carrying case were stolen from a car belonging to Larry Lindecrantz, 1201 South Lamine, while parked at the location. Value for the loss was placed at $300.

Another tape player and a battery were taken from a car owned by Randy Dalton, 501 West Fifth. The items were valued at $120. A car belonging to Steve Brown, 205 South Gentry, was also broken into but nothing was found missing.

Sweet Springs man dies in farm mishap

RICH HILL, Mo. (AP) — Virgil Owens Evans, 61, Sweet Springs, Mo., was killed when he apparently became entangled in a silage cutter, the highway patrol says.

The patrol said Evans was cutting silage on a farm six miles east of here when the cutter apparently became clogged. He is believed to have become entangled in the cutter while trying to fix it, the patrol said.

Bates County sheriff's deputies did not discover the body until Sunday evening. Evans died sometime Saturday, officer said.

Bill collectors help debtors

By DAN HALL

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The hated bill collector can win a debtor's appreciation by giving a simple lesson in budgeting, says one of the top women in the business.

"The average debtor really wants to pay bills, but he mismanages money," Helyn Lapides said in an interview. "We really feel that the average person who's in debt is happy if someone helps him out of it. I've encountered very few people who have been really obnoxious."

Mrs. Lapides, who operates a collection agency with her husband, Edward, said he instructs her staff to help debtors set up a schedule for paying their bills.

"If you can teach a child to play the piano, you can teach a person to pay a bill," she explained, drawing on her earlier occupation for the example.

"It's the same psychology. You've got to make them like it."

Reason usually prevails.

"You tell them the doctor should be paid because they may need him next month."

Mrs. Lapides's efforts to improve the bill collector's image recently resulted in her becoming the first woman to win the "Key Award" of the American Collectors Assn., an international organization of bill collectors.

A pioneering female executive in the field, she was the first president of the Connecticut Association of Collectors Bureaus and the Northeast Regional Collectors Conference.

A woman seems to have special assets for the job, "being more curious by nature, more disarming and much more detail-conscious," she said.

Telephone manner is particularly important in convincing someone to pay debts and there women excel, she said.

"The woman is inclined to be hammy and more relaxed."

Mrs. Lapides got into the collection business by chance, taking over her husband's Elm City Credit Adjustment Bureau when he entered the armed forces in 1943 and staying on when he returned.

Because of the image of the bill collector as an older, cigar-chewing, gruff man, many people are surprised to be confronted by a small, friendly woman asking for their money.

"They expect to see someone with three heads, I think," she said.

Lending group caters to women

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Using words like "agog" and "aghast" to describe women and their finances, feminist Susan Osborne has set out to lend women money and teach them how to use it, rather than to be intimidated by it.

She and Karen Wynn, both from New Haven, are co-managers of the Connecticut Feminist Federal Credit Union, a cooperative effort.

"Our loan policies are dictated by feminist priorities," Ms. Osborne said in an interview.

"Women do not have the same accessibility to money, to credit in the state and the nation," as do men, she said. She agreed that it has never been documented extensively but "it's such a well-known fact among women."

For example, she explained, there was the 54-year-old woman who — with 15 years of employment behind her and an annual gross of about $6,500 — was denied an automobile loan unless her father signed for it. He was 84 years old.

Another Connecticut case, said the 26-year-old money manager who prefers the title Ms., was that of the 26-year-old woman working for a Bridgeport bank. She had completed the bank's management training program and asked to take out a car loan. She was asked to get her father as a cosigner, Ms. Osborne said.

When she and her coworkers first considered the idea for the project, which she said is the first feminist credit union in the Northeast and the fourth in the country, they surveyed 150 New Haven women.

"Half of them have been turned down for loans or had problems getting loans. Just over 50 said they believed it was because of sex or marital status discrimination," Ms. Osborne said.

"We were aghast. It's kind of really apparent that we've got a tiger by the tail. We're referring people to the state Human Rights and Opportunities Commission" but the credit union workers feel "we have to come up with some way to work with this and focus on it."

Although loans will be available to individuals for traditional purposes — like education, cars, homes — "we are trying to make money accessible to women's projects that have difficulty getting money."

Candle wax strikes again

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with drivers who wait until they are just about to make a turn before switching on the signal light. I have had near accidents caused by drivers making abrupt right turn just in front of me and who only turned on the signal light after the turn was started. — MRS. R.G.

DEAR POLLY — My answer is for the reader with heel calluses who gets little wear out of hose without reinforced heels. I had this trouble until I started wearing nylon footlets. This really saves hose in more ways than one. I also put on a pair of stretch dress gloves before slipping my hands in my hose when putting them on and this prevents fingernail snags. — T.E.

DEAR POLLY — With food prices so high we try to save every crumb. In packaged cookies there are usually lots of crumbs and bits left in the bag. I save them and often combine several kinds in one plastic sandwich bag. I use these as topping on ice cream, pudding or parfaits. They come in very handy for "fancying" up desserts when unexpected company comes. — JUDY.

DEAR POLLY — Old pillowcases make great dust covers for seldom-worn clothing that hangs in the closet. Poke a hole in the center of the seam end and slip the coat hanger hook through it.

Another money saver for those who sew and have leftover fabric in plaids, stripes, prints, etc., is to cut it into narrow ribbons, with pinking shears, and use for tying gift packages. They look quite pretty on plain paper. — OLGA.

DEAR POLLY — It is very sensible to take pictures of your household possessions and treasured pieces in the home as this would help with identification should there be a theft, fire or any loss. A description of the articles shown could be written on the back of each picture. This is especially good when one has heirlooms or antiques that would be difficult to replace. — L.C.B.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Wax from a large candle melted down the side of an antique chest and then onto my acrylic pile carpet. Art Deco will be viewed at Bicentennial

Art Deco

Sophisticated geometric pattern of half-circles and V's in smoke, black and white would be equally at home in an early American setting. Shown here in the home of interior designer Angelo Donghia, it is a perfect accompaniment to the puffy Art Deco black and white striped sofa and striped black and white floor.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Thoughts of Bicentennial home furnishings might conjure up visions of whale oil lamps, cranberry pickers and hooked rugs. But would you believe, instead, Art Deco, the Jazz Age decorating style? Many manufacturers are on that track, maintains a well-known rug stylist, Marie Creamer, and she thinks of it as "a very nice design period" that will be used with early American as well as contemporary furnishings.

"Most people think of Art Deco, which was popular in the '20s and '30s, as being entirely European in origin, but it was influenced, too, by the American Indian.

"Not all Art Deco comes from the American Indian. Some people see influences from primitive and Egyptian art. But Art Deco uses the geometric designs of the Indian and their subtle colors — sand, the white of undyed wool and tones that are accented with coral red or Aztec green."

She sees colors restrained, no matter what the motif, although one color might be used for drama. Her four new area rugs carry out varied ideas. For example, one is large half-circles of black and white with smoky gray Indian V-signs, but another is dramatic curves in grays with a stepped pattern of oyster white in various sizes that might remind one of a floating staircase (of the '20s). In addition to the white and gray, she uses soft mauve and black. One rug has a splash of Aztec green running through it.

Art Deco had its beginning at the 1925 Exposition Internationale des Arts Decoratifs in Paris during the art modern movement, and it is proving to be a contradiction of ideas, even as it was then. Many people are waiting for the real Art Deco style to emerge from the abundance of half-century-old objects — furniture, mirrors, statues and the like — that have been exhibited in the last few years. They would like to see meaningful quality sorted out from high camp to provide a real definition.

Will elections always be safe in federal hands?

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — There is an old saying that where there is power, it will inevitably be used.

That axiom applies just as well to the power of money from the federal government's treasury as it does to the power of money from corporations, unions or trade associations.

Cromley

The recently-approved national clean election law ignores the truism and that should disturb every American.

We have been rightly concerned about the corrupting influence of huge donations to political candidates from milk producers, real estate operators union political actions funds — any special interest lobbyist. So the law just enacted restricts the size of private donations and the amount of money which can be spent by national candidates.

The law includes provisions for funds raised previously from private sources with $40 million in government funds to go to presidential candidates of the Republican and Democratic parties.

We ought to be as suspicious of huge amounts of federal money being spent in elections as we are of huge amounts of private money. The federal government is not some objective, disinterested oracle divorced from the frailties of man.

The federal government is controlled by human beings and my experience with them has taught me they will devise ways to use that $40 million in money power to control presidential candidates in ways we will not like.

If history is any teacher, these controls will start out as insignificant restrictions which most off-us will believe to be wise. They will be so minor that no one will be able to seriously object. Gradually, the web of controls will grow stronger, weakening the independence of the men running for President.

Before casting that thought aside, think back on the 200 years of this country's history. Recall how the federal government has increasingly taken over power from the states, cities and individuals. This accumulation of power has been accomplished through the reinterpretation of laws. It has been made possible through the control of the purse, by the inability of the states to unite and the failure of many states and localities to deal with pressing social and economic problems.

The powers over interstate commerce granted the federal government by the Constitution have been stretched to cover industries and businesses which by no stretch of the imagination are interstate commerce in the original meaning of that term.

The monies voted education in federal bills and through aid to impacted areas have been used to dictate to colleges and secondary and primary schools what some of their policies should be.

The huge federal purchases by the Defense Department and other agencies have been used to force private companies operating in local states to comply with Washington policy.

Welfare programs of the individual states, heavily aided from Washington, have been required in important respects to follow criteria laid down by federal officers. In some cases the federal rulings have resulted in major improvements. In other cases the results have been disastrous.

We should be thoroughly aware of the fact that we are exchanging one set of pressure groups for another. And it should be made clear we do not know where this change will lead. But some points can be made. The pressures exorted by individual donors tend to balance themselves out to some extent.

We have the government to monitor excesses, as in the Watergate case. But if the government is the sole donor in presidential races, who monitors the government?

The government in this case is Congress and no one has yet suggested Congress is able to monitor itself.

Homes phased out

A sign of our changing morals and mores is the rapid rate at which maternity homes, most of them founded many decades ago, have been closing their doors in recent years.

A group of researchers from the University of California has made a study of the phenomenon. Their findings, based on responses from 163 of the 201 known maternity homes in the United States in 1972, were reported in a recent issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

Less than 5 per cent of women bearing out-of-wedlock children received aid from a maternity home, the study notes. The majority of homes were small, having fewer than 40 beds. Yet in spite of their small size, most homes did not have a waiting list and few had more than 80 per cent occupancy.

The statistics also show that of 26 maternity homes closed since 1967, well over half — 61 per cent — closed since 1971.

According to the authors of the report, changing moral values and greater social acceptance of unwed mothers have significantly reduced the role of the traditional maternity home. They also note that effective family planning programs, the availability of abortions and expanded community services for pregnant teenagers have contributed to the downward trend. (NEA)

Not-so-better idea

In automotive lingo, "bug" used to refer to a particular model of foreign car. Now it has a slightly different connotation.

FBI agents last week seized illegal eavesdropping equipment from a Ford dealer in Kansas City. The listening devices were planted in the ceilings of "closing rooms" so salesmen could monitor the private conversations of potential customers.

Warrants were issued under the federal wiretap statute which makes it illegal to intercept communications without a court order or the consent of the persons involved.

We wonder where these salesmen took their training. From the KGB perhaps?

Turks settle down, don't 'negotiate'

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is supposed to be using his diplomatic skills to settle the Cyprus controversy. But the classified diplomatic cables contain no word of the heavy "negotiations" that President Ford has said are going on.

On the contrary, the Turks appear to be settling down for a permanent stay on Cyprus without discussing it with Kissinger. They are setting up a civilian administration in the northern third of the island.

Telephone lines have been strung to the Turkish mainland and former Greek shops are now being operated by Turkish Cypriots. Classified cables from Nicosia also disclose that citrus fruit from Cyprus is being transported to Turkey where it is exported as Turkish products.

The cable traffic also discloses that the Turks have banned all Greek religious services in the occupied towns. Over 170 Greek Orthodox priests have been removed from their parishes. Two churches, according to the cables, have been burned to the ground.

INJUSTICE TO INDIANS: There appears to be no end to the injustice inflicted on our neglected native Americans.

Documents in our possession describe severe overcrowding, inadequate care and outright malpractice in our Indian Health Service hospitals.

There is such a shortage of doctors at Oklahoma's Claremore Indian Hospital, for instance, that nurses have been taught to perform surgery.

The documents show they have performed circumcisions and episiotiomies in violation not only of state laws but of the Health, Education and Welfare Department's rules for protecting human subjects.

Moreover, Indian parents weren't told that nurses were circumcising their babies. Claremore's chief of pediatrics, Dr. Edwin Jones, who has resigned under fire, said he believed the parents would develop "unnecessary anxiety" if they knew nurses were performing the surgery on their babies.

The tragedy is that Dr. Jones felt it was necessary to teach surgery to nurses, thus violating state laws, federal regulations and ethical codes, in order to provide the bare minimum of health care for the Indians.

Footnote: The hospital's chief of staff has confirmed these abuses in a confidential memo to Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., whose subcommittee is investigating Indian health care.

DUAL ROLES: The back door to many a congressman's office can be reached through his law practice. But in the case of two bespectacled, Long Island lawyer-congressmen, the same door has admitted constituents and clients alike.

Reps. Jack Wydler and Jim Grover, both Republicans, came to Congress together in 1962. Each was entitled to a congressional office in his home district, so each simply moved his congressional activities into his law office.

Practicing law and conducting the public business out of the same office was an economy for the congressmen, since the taxpayers put up money for salaries, rent and telephones. But constituents might have wondered whether they would get a legal bill for bringing problems to their congressmen.

Wydler has assured us he separated his congressional and legal offices a couple of years ago.

Grover still serves his clients and constituents out of the same Babylon, N.Y., premises. But he insisted that he pays $205 rent each month out of his own pocket on top of the $350 from the government.

He also claimed he supplements the salaries of the two secretaries in his Long Island office, Edith Dirkes and Lorraine Proulx, who draw close to $19,000 a year from the taxpayers.

Grover also put Sam Markowitz on the public payroll for $20,000 a year. However, the latter appears to be working not for the taxpayers but for the local Republican party. He is reachable at Suffolk County Republican headquarters where he is a press spokesman.

Wydler, incidentally, has accepted campaign contributions from several government contractors, although this appears to be against the law. He received donations from Sidney Horowitz, chairman of the P&F Industries; Frank Lauro, chairman of International Hydronics; A. J. Roach, associated with Telecommunications Industries; and Howard Ris of the Ris Paper Co.

The statute barring contributions from federal contractors, it should be pointed out, is broadly worded and has never been enforced. The Justice Department has refused even to issue an advisory opinion on the law's application.

Wydler denied any wrongdoing.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Minority businessmen are furious because the Alaska pipeline builders have been virtually ignoring them in spite of a law stressing the need to hire black, Chicano and other minority-run firms. Out of $4 billion in contracts, only around $50 million have gone to minority-operated companies. Latin-origin businessmen are particularly steamed up: they have gotten only $5,000 worth of contracts ... All along, critics of the Federal Energy Administration have been saying it works hand-in-glove with the big power companies. Sure enough, the Atlanta office of FEA has been passing out a press kit prepared in part by the Georgia Power Co., one of the companies FEA is supposed to be regulating.

The need for war on cancer

WASHINGTON — The odds must be about a zillion to one against the wife of the President of the United States and the wife of the vice president-designate both having breasts removed within a period of a few weeks.

Rowan

This tragic coincidence has struck terror into the hearts of millions of women who already harbored gnawing fears of breast cancer.

In this bosom-oriented society, it is hard to calculate the psychological trauma induced by the operations on Mrs. Betty Ford and Mrs. Happy Rockefeller.

Yet, aside from the number of women who have almost panicked, there is the positive result that thousands have rushed to get the checkups that are so vital to early detection and cure.

Some other noteworthy things are happening, too, because of the publicity attending the mastectomies of these two, nationally-known women; medical men are debating the wisdom of having a woman undergo surgery moments after it is determined that a breast malignancy is present.

Obviously, I make no pretense at either medical or psychological expertise. I merely note that Arthur J. Snider, science editor of the Chicago Daily News, finds eminent doctors who think rushing a woman into breast surgery is "one of the worst aspects in the management of cancer." He finds other doctors of equal stature who insist that, psychologically for the woman, it is better to operate as quickly as possible — to get the whole traumatic process over in one shocking episode.

Again, I say that I have no expertise and thus no opinion as to the medical and psychological implications. But I am glad to see doctors debating publicly about such matters. When they are utterly polite to each other, I fear, a lot of medical truth is hidden and lost beneath the facade of phony agreement.

Still, there may be an even greater benefit to mankind from the suffering of Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Rockefeller. Their tragedies just might inspire this government to devote reasonably comparable resources to discovering the cause and cure for cancer as we have devoted to space exploration, or to unleashing the destructive potential of the atom.

I was in the Philippines when the first man landed on the moon. I shall never forget the excitement of those wee-hours television dramas in Manila. But how much more exciting it would be to witness the giving of the first anti-cancer vaccine!

This country spent $551 million on cancer research in fiscal 1974, a notable increase over the $190 million spent in 1970. Yet, the amount spent on cancer research is small compared with the $25 billion that we have spent on Apollo moon missions alone.

Wouldn't it be something if the United States, the Soviet Union, China, et al., invested billions in eradicating cancer, in preserving the useful life of men and women, instead of wasting precious resources on the development of multi-headed missiles loaded with warheads capable of wiping out mankind?

We are all creatures of fear — of myriad fears. Our worst enemies lurk across the backyard fence, or just beyond the city limits, or just the other side of the national border, especially if that border is also an ideological barrier. We have always squandered our wealth out of fear that the Germans, the Italians, the Japanese, the North Koreans, the North Vietnamese, the Russians, the Communist Chinese, the leftists in the Dominican Republic, the Marxists in Chile or some other aliens would overwhelm us.

Sad to say, maybe fear of cancer has now been raised almost to the level of fear of "commies." Perhaps now chances are improved that the money will be there for scientists, researchers, psychiatrists and others to really grapple with the scourge of cancer.

Today's thoughts

There is great gain in godliness with contentment; for we brought nothing into the world, and we cannot take anything out of the world; but if we have food and clothing, with these we shall be content. — I Timothy 6:6,7,8.

Woe is me because of my hurt! My wound is grievous. But I said, "Truly this is an affliction, and I must bear it." — Jeremiah 10:19.

The lug angle on tractor tires does not significantly affect traction — whether the angle is less than 90 degrees as in conventional tires or up to 140 degrees.

Tire manufacturers have varied lug height, spacing, angle, and shape, as well as tread width and curvature, in seeking improved performance from their tractor tires. While a lot lug angle has been thought to produce superior traction, this belief was not substantiated in research at the National Tillage Machinery Laboratory, Auburn, Alabama.

Little difference in performance with the eight lug angles tested was found. Lug angles below 90 degrees are probably no more effective than angles above 90 degrees. Lug angle may affect rate of tread wear or the ride of tires, especially on hard surfaces.

Prussic acid

Fall is a season when conditions occur that could result in prussic acid poisoning. Prussic acid is most apt to form when plants have been stunted by frost, drouth, freezing or near freezing temperatures.

Be especially cautious of plants that are wilted following frost. They may be grazed again after normal growth resumes. They may also be used after the stubble is dead and thoroughly cured.

Forages are likely to be most dangerous when plants are less than 15 to 18 inches high.

Neither sudangrass nor sorghum-sudan is dangerous when preserved as hay or silage after the ensiling process is complete.

Some farmers are hesitant about turning animals into grain sorghum stubble after heads have been harvested. Such stubble is absolutely safe when plants are dead and thoroughly cured.

For those who want to pasture such fields while some of the foliage is still green, the forage can be tested for prussic acid content. Most veterinarians are equipped to make such tests. Second growth milo is usually very high in purssic acid.

If cattle or sheep — the most susceptible farm animals — become poisoned from prussic acid, remove them from the area being pastured and call a veterinarian immediately. Treatment must often be given quickly to avoid death.

Limestone needs

Limestone makes fertilizers work. There has been an upturn in the tonnage of limestone needed to correct acidity on our soils in recent years, more so than it was 10 to 15 years ago.

The shortage of fertilizers and its high cost has created the need to apply enough lime to those fields where fertilizer will be applied for maximum or optimum yields. Acid soils cut down on the efficiency of the fertilizers used to the extent that certain fields today are only producing in the area of 50 to 60 per cent of their potential.

Nov. 1, UMC BULL SALE

Beef breeders of Show-Me counties will sell 27 tested bulls at the tested bull sale at Columbia Nov. 1.

A slate of 264 bulls will be auctioned beginning at 9 a.m., including 114 Angus, 113 Polled herefords, 15 Herefords, eight Charolais, eight Simmentals, three Limousin and three Polled Shorthorns.

The four most important standards bulls chosen for the sale have met are: an average daily gain of 2.4 pounds for life; grade B- or better at one year of age, according to the UM Extension Service grading system; an adjusted weight of 950 pounds at 365 days; and successful testing for breeding soundness.

Some bulls will have loineye estimates and fat cover, as measured by the scanogram, and some will have feed efficiency records and K40 fat-free body weight.

The 264 bulls chosen for the sale were selected from nearly 2,300 on performance test.

Higher costs

Agriculture in West Central Missouri is changing drastically. In 1956 the average capital managed was $60,000. In 1973, the average family farm in Show-Me managed $400,000 in capital.

This trend will continue to accelerate. In 1975 the total cost per acre to produce an acre of corn will climb to $175. In 1973 it was $132. The projected soybean production costs will increase from $97 to $129 for the same two years. The estimated cost to produce an acre of wheat will climb to $123 in 1975. It was $78 in 1973.

These updated crop costs are made possible through the computerized on-farm records that 50 families in Show-Me and 500 families over Missouri submit each month and pay an annual fee.

Getting ready

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., smiles as he straightens the new tie he wore for his appearance on CBS' "Face the Nation" program Sunday in Washington. Mansfield said that President Ford has to take the lead and arrive at specific proposals to solve the nation's economic woes.

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President and Mrs. Ford spent a relaxing weekend at Camp David and introduced their new dog, Liberty, to the wooded mountaintop retreat.

A spokesman said Ford swam and played golf both Saturday and Sunday and coaxed Liberty into the water Sunday. The President managed to squeeze in some work Sunday morning and had time to watch football on television in the afternoon.

Mrs. Ford, recovering from cancer surgery a month ago, went walking in the cool fall weather. The first family returned to the White House in time for Sunday dinner.

TOKYO (AP) — Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, who is hospitalized, has held a meeting with North Vietnamese Vice Premier Le Thanh Nghi, the officials Chinese news agency Hsinhua reports.

The news agency said Chou, 76, had a cordial and friendly meeting with the North Vietnamese official. It did not elaborate.

Chou reportedly suffered a heart attack last May.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Britain's Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, will tour Central America next March.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Academy Award-winning actress Susan Hayward has been released from Emory University Hospital and is returning to her home in California, a hospital spokesman says.

Miss Hayward, 55, has been hospitalized since early October and sources say she has been undergoing nonsurgical treatment for a brain tumor. Her physician, Dr. George Tindall, has refused to disclose the results of a brain biopsy last July.

The hospital spokesman, John Rozier, said of Miss Hayward: "Her doctors say her condition is much improved."

PRINCESS ANNE, Md. (AP) — Ella Fitzgerald didn't let a formal dedication ceremony stop her from doing what she does best: sing.

The jazz singer was here Sunday for the dedication of the $1.6 million Ella Fitzgerald Center for the Performing Arts, a 1,200 seat theater at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

After a jazz performance by the Earl Brown Quartet and comments by Gov. Marvin Mandel, the guest of honor broke into an improvised rendition of "Sunshine of My Life" and the audience of 900 joined in, clapping in time to the music.

Mondale says surtax proposal wrong answer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Ford's proposed five per cent surtax is wrong because the American consumer needs more, not fewer, dollars to get the country out of its economic slump, Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., said Sunday.

Mondale said there is no evidence to support the theory there is too much purchasing power.

Mondale was here to campaign for Missouri Democrats, particularly those running for Congress. He admitted he was picking up some political I.O.U.s for 1976, when he might be a candidate for his party's presidential nomination.

Mondale said car sales are off 25 per cent while prices are up 20 per cent and steel prices have increased 44 per cent while demand for steel has slackened.

"Ask any department store in Kansas City right now if there is too much demand," he said. "Ask any family of average means in this town if they've got enough money to make ends meet. What we're having is rising prices with a reducing market."

He said certain industries have such might they can manipulate market prices at will. He cited the oil industry as an example of segments of the economy that can raise prices even though demand is down. And he said a stronger Democratic Congress would move against some of these industries to break up their power, but did not mention specific steps.

Wife appeals for information about husband

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — The wife of missing oil executive Gary R. Simmons has appealed for help from anyone knowing his whereabouts.

Mrs. Simmons issued the appeal from her home here Sunday, saying "All I know is that something terrible must have happened. It's just not like him. He's a businessman. If he's five minutes late he calls me."

Simmons was last seen Oct. 15 when he left his office with another man. Later that morning he wrote a $30,000 check to the man, who then cashed it for 300 $100 bills.

Police are also searching for Simmons' 1974 Lincoln Continental, license number JOZ-5180. It is believed the two men left the oil company offices in the car.

Believe jail inmate dressed as woman, left

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A 24-year-old inmate of the Jackson County jail walked to freedom Sunday for the second time in six months—this time apparently dressed as a woman.

Authorities said Michael Few was visited Sunday afternoon by three women. He was later discovered missing from the visiting room, which had been occupied by some 40 persons.

Officials said Few was believed to have escaped in a dark green pantsuit and a wig, possibly walking away with the three women.

Few was awaiting tranfer to prison at Jefferson City, where he was to serve a 25-year sentence for a first degree armed robbery charge and a 5-year sentence on a second degree burglary conviction.

He also had been charged with escape, after fleeing custody while at General Hospital last April.

Officials said Few should be considered dangerous.

Export margin over imports down slightly

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of U.S. farm exports still is exceeding imports of foreign agricultural products by a wide margin, but government figures show the bulge has receded slightly from last year.

During July and August, says the Agriculture Department, farm exports totaled slightly more than $3.08 billion, up from about $2.7 billion during the same two months in 1973.

Meantime, according to USDA figures, imports of agricultural products in July and August totaled more than $1.75 billion, compared with more than $1.35 billion a year earlier.

The difference between exports and imports — a trade advantage for U.S. farm products — was about $15 million less during the two months this year than it was in July-August of 1973.

During all of last fiscal year, the 12 months ended last June 30, farm exports exceeded imports by about $11.8 billion. Exports totaled a record $21.3 billion and imports a record $9.5 billion.

The department's Economic Research Service, in a monthly report, said import values of products competitive with U.S. production — including sugar, meat and dairy products — were up nearly 35 per cent from a year earlier during July and August.

Imports of noncompetitive products such as coffee, bananas and rubber were up 18 per cent from the same two months last year on the basis of value.

Most of the value increases of imports was due to higher prices, although quantities of some products also were up, the report said.

Sugar was a major factor in both instances. Nearly 1.2 million tons were imported during July and August, up 17 per cent from a year earlier.

Sugar prices rose even faster, putting the total July-August value of imports at $495 million, an increase of 181 per cent from their value of $176 million a year earlier.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A report by the Agriculture Department indicated today the Ford administration will wait until the start of next week's World Food Conference in Rome to disclose further details of the U.S. position.

The conference is scheduled to begin Nov. 5. The U.S. delegation will be led by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz.

Today's report, published by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, said details of what Butz may propose "will await presentation" at the conference.

For months, however, Butz has insisted that while he supports a world food reserve each country should develop its own policies within the international framework.

Further, Butz has been opposed to a U.S. reserve founded upon government owned stocks of grain. He says farmers and the private trade should control the supply.

Bishop nominees announced

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The office of the Eastern Missouri Diocese of the Episcopal Church has announced the names of five candidates for election as bishop, to succeed Rt. Rev. George L. Cadigan who retires in April.

The names of the five nominees, announced Saturday, will be submitted to delegates to a convention to elect the new bishop here Dec. 7. Delegates will include 160 lay persons and 64 clergymen.

The nominees are: Rt. Rev. Scott F. Bailey, assistant bishop of the Diocese of Texas; Rev. William A. Jones, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Johnson City, Tenn.; Very Rev. Joseph A. Pelham, dean of students at Colgate Rochester Divinity School; Rev. Gordon S. Price, rector of Christ Church at Dayton, Ohio, and Rev. G. Richard Wheatcroft, rector of St. Francis Episcopal Church, Houston, Tex.

There are about 30,000 Episcopalians in the eastern Missouri diocese. They voted for three of the candidates from a list of 16 during balloting this month, marking the first time members of the congregation had a hand in selecting a bishop.

A screening committee added two other names Saturday-those of Rev. Jones and Rev. Pelham.

In 1971, the highest bank rate was that of Brazil at 20 per cent and the lowest, that of Morocco at 3½ per cent.

Confirmation urged despite rock festival

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — State Sen. Larry Marshall, R-Columbia, says state Agriculture Director James Boillot should be confirmed by the state Senate despite problems with the Sedalia rock festival this summer.

Marshall says some of the members of the Senate are trying to "take a couple of shots" at Governor Christopher S. Bond's appointments. Marshall said the question of whether Boillot will be confirmed or not depends on whether some senators make an issue of the festival.

Boillot, as state agriculture director, signed the contract to lease the fair grounds to promoters of the Ozark Music Festival. Earlier this weekend, Boillot said in a KFRU interview he is not sure how the rock festival will affect his confirmation. He said he hopes the Senate will consider his total record.

The smallest attendance at a world heavyweight title fight was 2,434 at the Clay vs. Liston fight at Lewiston, Maine, on May 25, 1965.

HOG TERMS

In the United States hogs were classified as "lard" and "bacon" types for many years. That classification has outlived its usefulness. It seems more appropriate now to classify them as (1) lean- or meat-type and (2) fat-type.

Hogs with enough finish, but no more than necessary, to produce carcasses of desired quality are lean- or meat-type hogs, while those with more finish than necessary are fat-type hogs. Carcasses weighing from 200 to 220 pounds and having a backfat thickness of approximately 1.3 inches are the most desirable. Length desired in such carcasses is about 30 to 31 inches from the aitch bone of the split hams to the breast bone at the first rib. Lighter, shorter hogs may have a little less backfat, and yield carcasses of equal quality. Hogs ranging in live weight from 220 to 250 pounds yield carcasses of desirable quality when the backfat averages 1.5 to 1.8 inches and the length ranges from 30 to 32 inches.

Maybe next year

St. Louis Cardinals' quarterback Jim Hart (17) walks off the playing field talking to Redskins' Mike Bass, who came over to congratulate Hart for leading the Cards to their seventh straight victory, 23-20. The scoreboard tells the tale. Washington will have to wait until next year for another regular-season shot at St. Louis, the lone undefeated team in the NFL.

Cardinals roll up No. 7

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals are unbeaten at the season's midway point and George Allen says they're real.

"They're in the driver's seat now," Allen said after Jim Hart and the Cardinals dumped his Washington Redskins 23-20 again Sunday in the National Football League.

"They're a big play team," he added. "They're well coached, they're aggressive, they're playing with intensity and they're going to be tough to catch."

Allen's remarks reflected on the Cardinals' 7-0 record and three-game bulge in the National Conference East over the Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles, who are 4-3.

By winning four of their remaining games, the surprising team could assure itself of at least a division title tie and a berth in the playoffs.

"But we're not out of the woods yet," said Hart, who pierced the Redskins' defenses for a pair of touchdown passes.

"We've come this far before too many times and wound up with nothing," he said. "It's too early to start talking about titles."

In the absence of words, Hart completed 15 of 19 passes and helped the Cardinals capitalize on an earlybreak for a 16-0 lead.

Ageless Sonny Jurgensen's trajectories later aroused the Redskins, who closed to 16-10, but Hart matched the 40-year-old Jurgensen in the final half.

A penalty thwarted a touchdown bid by Washington, which crept to 16-13 on Mark Moseley's 34-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Then Hart, who earlier hit eight straight completions, whipped a 17-yard scoring pass to Donny Anderson that withstood a late Jurgensen fusillade.

"The big factor was having the time to get rid of the ball," said Hart, who also detonated a 52-yard bomb to Earl Thomas in the second quarter.

"Our offensive line did a fantastic job keeping the Redskins off my back," added the cherubic appearing quarterback, whose aeriale accounted for 200 yards.

Jurgensen, meanwhile, completed 20 of 29 passes for 201 yards, but his first was intercepted and returned 53 yards to a Cards touchdown by Roger Wehrli.

"I was throwing the ball away," said Jurgensen, whose intended sideline receiver was Charley Taylor. "I wasn't trying to complete the pass, because he was covered. I was as surprised as anybody."

Larry Brown hauled in two Jurgensen touchdown passes, the final for 13 yards with 8 minutes and 47 seconds left.

"It was a key game," said Jurgensen, a spokesman for the subdued Redskins, who lost to an opponent a second time in one season for the first time under Allen.

"We had to have it, and they got it," he said. "They made the big plays. They earned what they got."

Fans down on Gilliam

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It sounds like the bad old days. Pittsburgh Steeler fans are booing again.

Their team takes first-place standing into tonight's nationally televised game with the struggling Atlanta Falcons, but a lot of local ticket buyers aren't satisfied.

Two seasons ago, Pittsburgh won its first National Football League division title ever behind frenzied home crowds that vented four decades of frustration.

Yet mere victory has become as passe here as defeat once was. Steeler fans who used to pelt their team with snowballs for losing are now upset with an offense that has managed just one scoring drive of longer than 50 yards in its last four games.

The prime target of their boos is quarterback Joe Gilliam, who led the league in preseason passing, put Terry Bradshaw on the bench and put Pittsburgh's once strong running game in mothballs.

Gilliam has been off form in recent weeks, prompting chants of "We want Bradshaw" from the stands.

Last week, Gilliam completed just five of 18 passes in a tough 20-16 win over the Cleveland Browns, who had won only one game previously.

The win gave Pittsburgh a half-game lead over the Cincinnati Bengals in the Central Division of the AFC, and the Bengals fell a full-game behind with their upset loss to Houston Sunday.

"If we're in first place and still not totally happy, that must say something for our potential," Steeler Coach Chuck Noll said last week.

"We're not perfect, but we're trying to eliminate those mistakes," he added.

Atlanta, 2-4, has also been strong on defense but impotent offensively. The Falcons have scored just five touchdowns and 53 points all seasons, prompting a "Dump the Dutchman" campaign aimed at Coach Norm Van Brocklin.

Van Brocklin called last week's 13-3 loss to the New Orleans Saints an "all-time low" for the Falcons, regarded as a title contender in preseason.

Green scores twice as Chiefs snap skid

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Coach Hank Stram reflected on the two time-consuming scoring drives engineered by veteran Len Dawson which enabled the Kansas City Chiefs to defeat San Diego 24-14 Sunday in a National Football League game.

"It's the best offensive game we've had all year. We maintained possession," he said.

Dawson, 39, had substituted for starting quarterback Mike Livingston at the beginning of the second half with the score tied 7-7. He attempted only four passes and all were completed. One, a 67-yard bomb to rookie halfback Woody Green, put the Chiefs ahead to stay in the fourth period following a 14-14 tie.

A hospital case much of the season with a broken bone in his back, Dawson was aided considerably by the fine running of Green, who gained 146 yards in 23 carries and caugh four passes totaling 98 yards.

"It was a play action pass," Green said of the game clinching touchdown. Len called it in the huddle. I knew I had the touchdown when I caught the ball."

Green scored twice as the Chiefs snapped a three-game losing steak while the Chargers lost their fifth in a row.

On the Chiefs' first possession of the second half, with the score 7-7, an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty was assessed on KC's Wayne Walton, placing the Chiefs in a second-and-25 situation.

But Green powered his way through the Charger line on the next play for 43 yards to San Diego's 26.

Five plays later, Green twisted his way to the end zone from two yards out, capping a 67 yard scoring drive consuming nearly five minutes.

Late in the fourth quarter the Chiefs took the ball on their own 32 to begin another long drive. They chewed up almost all of the remaining 6:32 minutes, scoring on a 23-yard Jan Stenerud field goal with a minute left to play.

"We controlled the line of scrimmage," Stram said.

For Green, it was his best game of the year against what he called, "some awfully big people."

"It's a whole lot different than in college...these guys are physical."But the 6-foot-1, 205-pound rookie was pretty physical himself. "We knew we could run at their line every which way," said Green. "It was definitely in our plan."

The Chargers opened the scoring with four seconds left in the first quarter with an 18 yard scoring pass by Dan Fouts to Gary Garrison.

Elmo Wright took a 12-yard reverse in for a score late in the first half to tie the game.

After Green scored his first touchdown, the Chargers scored on a six-yard run by rookie Don Woods.

Stram was especially high on Green.

"Woody gives us the dimension we've been lacking. He's a big play runner and he certainly gave that to us today," Stram said.

Mama Clay says

Her son really wants this one

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Mama Odessa Clay says her boy, Cassius, always has been a josher — even when he was a tyke beating everybody at marbles — but it's not good to cross him when he gets mad.

"He always was doing things to make people laugh but underneath he could be very moody and serious," added Mrs. Cassius Marcellus Clay, Sr., of Louisville, Ky.

"I think he is very serious now, in spite of all that spoofing you see in the ring. He wants to win bad. I think he will win."

Mrs. Clay, a pleasant, pillowy woman in her late fifties, and her husband, a dapper sign painter and commercial artist, have traveled to darkest Africa to see what looms as the climax of their son's tempestuous career.

They will be at ringside in Zaire's big soccer stadium at 4 a.m. local time Wednesday (10 p.m. EST Tuesday) when the handsome fighter they christened Cassius Marcellus, who has taken the Muslim name of Muhammad Ali, attempts to win back the heavyweight boxing championship which authorities stripped from him because he wouldn't go to war.

His foe is the reigning champion, George Foreman, a brutish monster of a man who has virtually destroyed every fighter he has faced the last three years.

"George looks very big and mean and he has been knocking out everybody he's met," Mrs. Clay said. "But Sonny Liston was big and mean looking, too, and he didn't scare my boy none."

Ali won the title from the now deceased Liston in a staggering upset in Miami Beach, Fla., in 1964 and repeated the triumph 15 months later with a first round knockout in Lewiston, Maine.

Three and a half years of idleness in 1968-70 — brought about by Ali's failure to enter military service — dulled his skills but he seems to have whipped himself back into razor trim at the age of 32 for the greatest test of his life.

Some bookmakers in America are reported making the younger Foreman a 3-1 favorite but the more realistic odds are the 11-5 quoted by the London shops.

Each fighter has been guaranteed $5 million, a record purse, for the evening's work. A conglomeration of sponsors and money lenders, including the Zaire government, is hoping for a $20 to 30 million gross, largely through worldwide theater television.

Government spokesman predict the live gate will bring in $600,000 from a ticket scale ranging from $250 for choice ringside to $10 for the more remote of the 100,000 seats.

Both Ali and Forman planned to wind up training with light workouts Monday and then engage in the long wait for the unique 4 a.m. bell. Never before has a major fight been staged at such an ungodly hour, dictated to meet American closed circuit TV commitments. That's where most of the money will come from.

Boston gives ex-coach, Scouts rough treatment

BOSTON (AP) — Bep Guidolin, the coach of the Kansas City Scouts, was in familiar surroundings in Boston Garden, but felt a little like a stranger returning home.

"It seemed a little different looking over from that bench and seeing No. 4 (Bobby Orr) and No. 7 (Phil Esposito)," Guidolin said Sunday night after the Boston Bruins whipped the National Hockey League's expansion Scouts 8-2 before 15,003 fans at the Garden.

Just five months ago, after leading the Bruins to the Stanley Cup playoff finals, Guidolin quit the Bruins in a contract dispute. Now he's trying to put together a respectable team in Kansas City.

"This was the worst game we've played," Guidolin said. "Our guys met a superior hockey team and they knew it. Before they went on the ice I could tell they were thinking, 'These are the Boston Bruins, this is Boston Garden.' We've got a lot of work to do."

Esposito and veteran Johnny Bucuk scored two goals each and Orr chipped in with three assists as the Bruins extended their unbeaten streak to five games.

Wayne Cashman, Don Marcotte, Dallas Smith and Bobby Schmautz were the other scorers for the Bruins, who outshot the Scouts 35-26.

Wilf Paiement and Simon Nolet had the Kansas City goals as the Scouts completed a long road trip with a tie and seven losses.

"It's not going to be an easy winter," Guidolin said. "However, maybe a little home atmosphere will help. We finally get to play our first home game in a new building next Saturday against Chicago."

Late surge earns UMR tie with Central State

By The Associated Press

University of Missouri-Rolla quarterback Greg Haug passed for 295 yards and two touchdowns, both in the final period, to give the Miners a 21-21 tie with Central Missouri and the lead in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association over the weekend.

Haug completed 24 of 39 pass attempts, including 10 to split end Jack Gevecker for 127 yards, as UMR boosted its record to 2-0-1 in the MIAA. Central Missouri is 0-2-1 in the conference and 2-4-1 over-all. Rolla's season mark is 4-2-1.

Gino Traveline ran back a kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown with 50 seconds left to give Southwest Missouri a 29-24 victory over Northwest Missouri State and left both teams with a 2-1 MIAA mark and over-all record of 5-2.

Steve Stokes had put the Bearcats out in front 24-22 with a 22-yard field goal 13 seconds before Traveline's scoring runback.

Steve Powell, the MIAA's leading rusher, gained 91 yards and scored a touchdown in leading Northeast Missouri to a 17-0 victory over Lincoln in the other conference game.

Marvin Hill scored the only other touchdown for the Bulldogs on a five-yard burst and Kent kicked a 27-yard field goal and two extra points.

Southeast Missouri posted a 23-17 nonconference victory over Missouri Western, which featured an 80-yard end run for a touchdown by Bobby Everage.

In Heart of America action Central Methodist handed William Jewell its first conference defeat, a 44-21 decision with sophomore Bill Lankford accounting for 26 points.

Lankford scored on touchdowns of five, five and six yards, had a 47-yard field goal and five conversions.

In other HOA action, Graceland edged Ottawa 15-14 and Missouri Valley whipped Baker 28-0.

In play among the independents, Culver-Stockton scored a 34-6 victory over Lake Forest, Ill., and Missouri Southern topped Pittsburg, Kan., State 24-13 as Robert Davis scored two touchdowns on runs of seven and 19 yards.

Providence wins 7th straight title

BOSTON (AP) — Providence College is the Eastern intercollegiate cross country meet champion for the seventh year in a row, thanks to two imports from Ireland's national team, John Treacy and Gerry Redmond.

Treacy and Redmond finished 1-2 Saturday as the Friars dominated the meet with a low score of 28 points. Springfield was second with 75, followed by Brandeis with 102, Bates 105, and Coast Guard 193.

Treacy covered the five-mile course at Franklin Park in 24 minutes, 5 seconds. Redmond was just three seconds behind.

S-C tennis team finishes fourth

CARROLLTON — Sedalia Smith-Cotton finished fourth out of the seven-school field here Saturday in the Missouri State High School Activities Association's district girls tennis tournament.

Patty Karigan and Ramona Woodman won their opening two doubles matches, but lost in their semifinal bid and again in their try for third place for the team's points.

Lexington, Carrollton and Marshall finished 1-2-3 respectively ahead of the Tigers.

Top seed prevails

TEHRAN, Iran — Top-seeded Guillermo Villas of Argentina captured the $100,000 Aryamehr Professional Tennis Cup Tournament with a 6-0, 6-3, 6-1 victory over Raul Ramirez of Mexico.

Bill Utz wins IMCA sprint championship

(Democrat-Capital Service)

SHREVEPORT, La. — Bill Utz, Sedalia, has never liked asphalt tracks. He didn't really have to in order to wrap up the 1974 International Motor Contest Association sprint car championship here at the Louisiana State Fair over the weekend.

The Shreveport half-mile track is now asphalt, and the IMCA sprinters made their first visit here since the surface was changed a few years ago.

About all Utz, who drives the Dean Hathman-Pat O'Connor Chevrolet, had to do was participate. Although the veteran driver netted only 100 points (unofficial) for the two-day meet, his closest opposition, Larry Kirkpatrick of Wood River, Ill., got only 50 (unofficial).

Bill Utz

That gave Utz his first IMCA sprint championship with 2,500 unofficial points. He entered the weekend with a 155-point lead over Kirkpatrick.

Utz finished second in a heat race and notched fifth place in the feature Saturday. Sunday he also placed second in a heat, but didn't earn any feature points. That made no difference since the title had already been decided.

Jim McElreath, Arlington, Tex., who won the 1970 United States Auto Club's Ontario 500 for championship cars, won both features.

Mo. Sports Hall to induct Smith

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Harry Smith, a Missouri assistant football coach for 20 years and now assistant professor of health and physical education and men's intramurals director at the school, will be inducted into the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame Nov. 23.

Smith, a native of Russellville, Mo., was a star guard at Southern California during his college days. He joined the Missouri football staff as an assistant in 1941 and served under three coaches, Don Faurot, Frank Broyles and Dan Devine.

Smith was freshman coach at Missouri two years and head coach of the Saskatchewan Rough Riders in the Canadian League for one season.

Oswald: "Our code word 'ARCH' should be used by the defenders as well as by the declarer."

Jim: "East wins the heart. He Analyzes the lead as fourth best, so South is marked with three hearts. He Reviews the bidding and notes that South jumped to four spades after his partner merely raised to two. He Counts his own three winners and sees that the way to beat the hand is for West to produce a trick. If it is in trumps it will score surely. If it is the king of clubs it will probably be sure; if it is the jack some special defensive measures may be necessary."

Oswald: "The How can I beat this hand is now developed. East takes a second heart and forces dummy to ruff a third one. That ruff in dummy would always be there. East just forced South to take it early."

Jim: "The final nail is put in South's coffin if East ducks the first diamond; notes that his partner has followed with the deuce to show three diamonds and takes the second one to shut out the rest of dummy's diamond suit."

Controversial communion

For the first time since their disputed ordination, these three Episcopal women priests Sunday lead the congregation of New York's Riverside Church in celebrating holy communion. They are the Rev. Carter Heyward, center; the Rev. Alison Check, left; and the Rev. Jeannette Piccard, Minneapolis.

Women hold Holy Communion

NEW YORK (AP) — Three women who were ordained as Episcopal priests have again defied their church leaders by celebrating Holy Communion at the nondenominational Riverside Church.

As the women reached a candle-decorated table Sunday at the spot where an altar would have been in an Episcopal church, about 2,000 persons attending the ceremony burst into applause.

Hanging over the chancel rail was a brightly colored sign with the legend: "In Christ there is neither male nor female, bond nor free, Jew nor Gentile, we are one."

The women priests then consecrated the elements of communion, an act historically performed only by male priests. They also gave communion to women and men who did not kneel, another departure from tradition.

The three celebrants said they held the eucharistic service "according to the official authorized services of the Episcopal Church, despite a declaration by the House of Bishops that we are not priests."

The women, the Revs. Alison Cheek of the diocese of Virginia, Carter Heyward of New York and Jeanette Piccard of Minnesota, were ordained in Philadelphia July 29 by four bishops after their diocesan superiors had refused the apostolic laying on of hands.

On Aug. 15 the House of Bishops, one of the governing chambers of the Protestant Episcopal Church, expressed the opinion that the ordinations were invalid. However, the body affirmed its approval in principle of women's ordination.

New program proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is being urged to scrap the maze of federal public-assistance programs in favor of a proposed new welfare program guaranteeing poor families a minimum annual income of $3,600.

Named the Income Supplement Program, the plan was developed over the last year in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and has been circulating within the President's Cabinet the last three weeks.

HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said initial reaction has been cautious.

HEW planners estimate the program's first-year cost at $21.6 billion. Although as many as 42 million Americans might be eligible because of their low incomes, the department believes that 10 million of that number would not apply for their cash benefits.

The proposed plan would replace Aid to Families with Dependent Children, which covers 10.7 million persons at an annual federal-state cost of $8 billion; Supplemental Security Income aiding 3.3 million aged, blind and disabled poor; the food stamp program, which has doubled in cost to more than $4 billion the last two years; and clothing and housing allowances.

"All of this is predicated on agreement and willingness to put all these existing programs into one," Weinberger said in an interview. "If we're talking about adding a new program on top of everything else, I am the first man to oppose it."

In a draft memo obtained by the weekly National Journal, Weinberger argues that the proposed plan, a form of negative income tax, would make Congress more keenly aware that sweetening the welfare pie in the future would require tax increases.

Weinberger said in the interview that if a more liberal Democratic Congress were elected next month, public assistance programs already on the lawbooks would come under strong pressure for benefit increases.

The President is being told that the present welfare system is a runaway nightmare, which distributes assistance inequitably to the poor, at a total cost no one has yet been able to tabulate.

"I would hope the President would decide whether he wants to include a proposal of this kind in his State of the Union Address," Weinberger said. "That's what we are pointing for."

The Income Supplement Program contains a strong work requirement, to appeal to conservative legislators. Every able-bodied recipient would have to apply for work and take an offered job.

Aid Mexican weathermen

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) — The United States is spending $400,000 a year to help Mexico modernize its weather forecasting operation and improve tracking of hurricanes.

"We have a great cooperative program between Mexico and the United States," says Mike Sunray, weather expert for the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City. Sunray supervises the assistance program.

The money, an allotment from the annual $500-million budget of the U.S. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, is given Mexico in equipment and training for Mexican weathermen, Sunray said in an interview.

Four other Americans involved in the assistance program are advisers who supervise the operation of 10 weather stations in Mexico.

The stations are operated by Mexicans and are part of the government's loosely knit weather forecasting system managed by the Agriculture Ministry.

All of the 10 stations' equipment and data-gathering techniques are from the United States and are supervised by U.S. weather experts, Sunray said.

The stations are useful to the United States because they gather what Sunray called "raw data" on wind direction, temperature, humidity and other conditions which may affect the United States.

"We get this information and send it up daily to Washington for the National Weather Service to digest and distribute around the nation for local weathermen," Sunray said.

He said the information is vital for the Southwest, mainly the U.S. border states, which are affected by Mexican weather conditions.

Mexico and the United States signed a joint agreement in 1942 for such cooperation, which had been requested by the U.S. government to provide weather data for supply planes during World War II.

"We have renewed the agreement annually and we hope to expand the agreement to continue helping Mexico improve its weather forecasting techniques," Sunray said.

"This becomes extremely important during the hurricane season," he said. "Then all Mexican stations follow the hurricanes and provide the U.S. Gulf Coast with information complementary to our own data."

The hurricane season usually starts in late May and ends in late November.

MONTREAL (AP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, is expected to hold a hearing this week on a brawl in a game last Friday night in Oakland between the California Golden Seals and the Philadelphia Flyers.

Arraignment scheduled for today

CHICAGO (AP) — A security guard was to be arraigned today on bank robbery charges in the theft of $4.3 million in cash from a Chicago security firm.

Ralph Ronald Marrera, 31, an employe of the Purolator Security Co. Inc., parent firm of the Armored Express Corp., allegedly failed a lie detector test in connection with the robbery. He was arrested Sunday by Chicago police in a suburban home of relatives.

He had been sought by federal and local authorities since Friday when a federal warrant was issued for his arrest.

Marrera was the only guard on duty when thieves took more than $4 million—weighing about 700 pounds—out of an Armored Express Corp. vault Oct. 20. Another $21 million was left behind because the thieves apparently lacked either the manpower or the time to remove it, authorities speculated.

A spokesman said Sunday that police went to the home of Mat Sparduto, the husband of Marrera's father-in-law, after searching through civil records to determine where his relatives lived in the Chicago area.

Marrera was charged in a federal warrant with bank robbery, bank larceny and use of explosive devices.

Authorities at first estimated the theft at $3.9 million, but the FBI revised the figure upward last Friday.

Another man, Charles Marzano, is being sought in a nationwide search. Two other men were questioned earlier and released.

A $195,000 reward has been offered for information leading to the money's recovery.

President Ford grants first exclusive interview

ABOARD AIR FORCE ONE (AP) — The day had been long, 17 hours from dawn over the south lawn of the White House to near midnight over the mesas and mountains of the Southwest, 2,800 miles by presidential jet, helicopter, car, bus, foot. Altogether a noisy, sweaty blur of unchic summitry from the humid city hall of Magdalena, Mexico, to the sodden golf course of Tubac, Ariz.

In the darkened middle compartment of Air Force One, a Secret Service agent was whispering in the code of his trade, into an air-to-ground phone: "Red Baron advises that ..."

Most people aboard, advisers, agents, speechwriters, secretaries and reporters, were now asleep or wearily on the edge. One furthest from the edge was the big man in the forward compartment, who sat at a table and talked ebulliently in his shirtsleeves, collar open, tie loosened, bourbon and branch water in hand.

Over the back of his chair hung a blue Air Force One lounge jacket. The name tag said: "Gerald Ford." The name tag on the jacket that his predecessor wore said: "The President."

The 38th President of the United States, in office 10 seesaw weeks, talked of many things during an exclusive interview, his first, on Monday night between Tucson and Oklahoma City.

He talked about "tougher measures," if necessary, to reduce American dependence on Arab oil and said, "We could really put an embargo on foreign imports which would have a much more severe impact on availability and supply." He said this might be necessary if Congress or the public failed to respond to his present program.

He talked about the economy and said he would consider wage and price controls only in the event of a "very major international crisis."

He talked about being President and said, "I love it," and, "It's sort of got my adrenalin going again."

He talked about the national state of skepticism and said he views it as a "self-destruct attitude" among Americans which "we've got to lick."

He talked about the pardon and, answering detailed questions not asked by Congress, said there was no "conceivable" way — "none whatsoever" — that Richard M. Nixon's chief of staff could have gotten the impression Ford might favor a pardon.

He talked of his wobbly "marriage" with Congress and said he thought it would improve after the election despite his hard campaigning.

He talked in poignant detail of his last days as vice president. He said he was so stunned to learn he'd soon be President he couldn't tell his wife immediately. Instead, he went through the charade of looking at furniture with her for the vice president's house, which he knew they'd never live in.

He talked of his last fateful meeting with then President Nixon, one man on the way down from the pinnacle, the other on the way up, and came to the edge of tears in the telling.

Close up, Gerald Rudolph Ford comes across as a big, warm man whom you want to believe (you'd feel somewhat shabby if you didn't). A friendly, happy man you'd want to play golf with, a man of no intellectual pretensions but apparently a willing learner, a town booster, a Rotarian out of Main Street if Sinclair Lewis had been benign, a man with a big, hearty laugh who likes to laugh, a man unabashedly at home with himself, his job and his countrymen, a genuine, gregarious middle American in ways that Richard Nixon, in his imperial solitude, might espouse but could not practice.

Gerald Ford's hair is thinning up the middle and his blue-gray eyes are disarmingly earnest. His clothes have been described as Sears Roebuck mod with their wide lapels, slashed pockets and flared trousers, suggesting he might have gone a bit overboard when the style arrived but as President has not yet had time to retrench.

He quickly addresses his visitors by their first names and, unlike the way it is with most politicians, you don't resent it. You quickly feel like an old friend without knowing why. The only problem in talking to him is to resist the temptation to call him Jerry.

We talked in the President's private compartment. Near his right hand, on a ledge under the windows, was a white phone which connects him with the cockpit and the plane's communications center, which connects him with the White House switchboard, which connects him with the world.

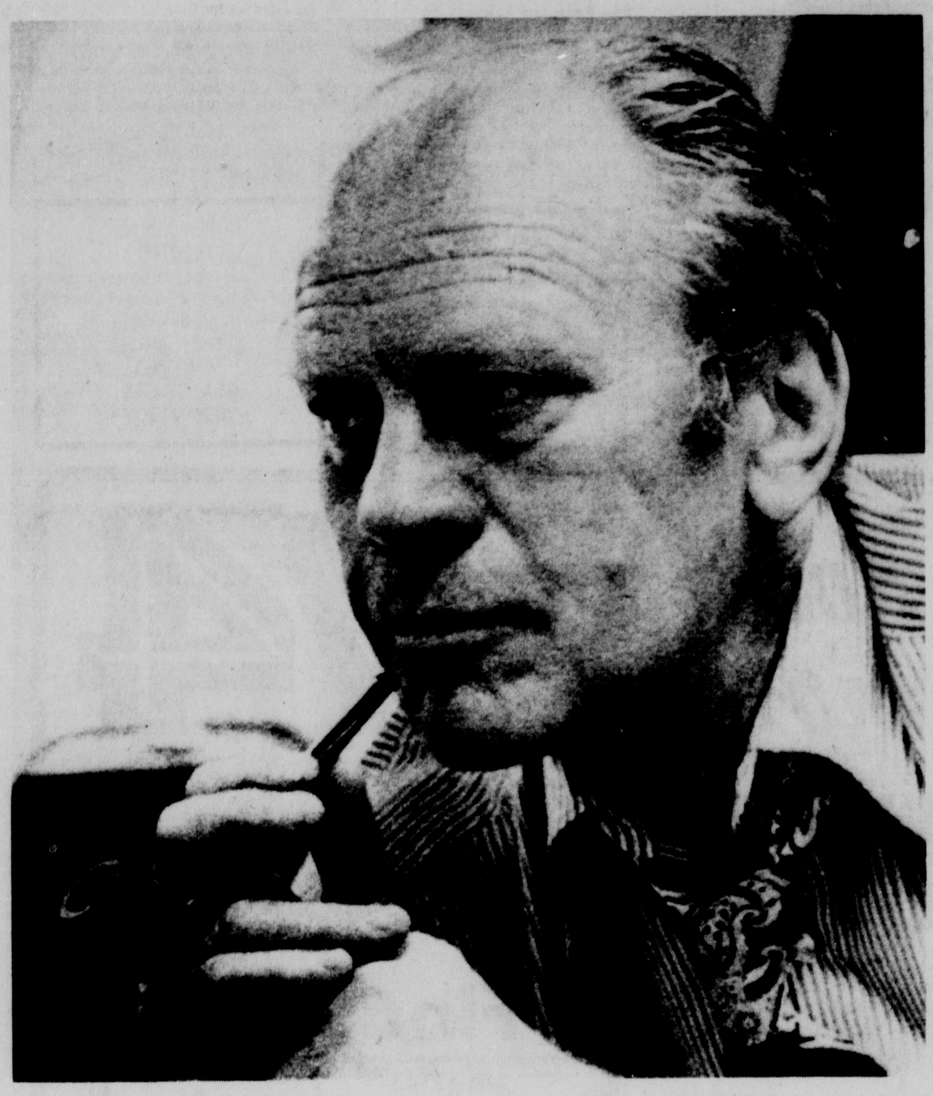
Also present were Donald Rumsfeld, White House staff director, and Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

The President was exhilarated. He said he loves his job because of its challenges.

"I feel great. Every day, from the point of view of focusing in and meeting the problems, I think we're doing better. That doesn't mean we've solved all the problems but we're better organized to meet them."

A year ago, after 25 years in the House, nine as Republican minority leader, Gerald Ford was getting a "little bored." He was planning to run for one more two-year term and then quit politics.

"Now," he said, "the old adrenalin is going. After a day like this, how can you help it? Weren't you impressed with the crowds in Mexico? Well, these things still thrill me. They really do."



Ponders a question

President Gerald Ford reflects briefly before resuming his conversation with Associated Press writer Saul Pett. Ford met Pett for the interview while aboard the Presidential plane.

Industry facing severest test

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — American industry now is in a cyclical phase that requires the utmost in managerial performance by both small and large business, with bankruptcy being the penalty for incompetence.

When times are good, it has been observed, a business can coast along while violating every credo of good management, but such companies disappear after the first test.

Eugene Jennings, management professor at the University of Michigan and consultant to business, comments that many managers know how to exploit good times but few can handle the downturns equally well.

There are few clearer illustrations than the fast food franchises that proliferated in the 1960s, when almost any concept could attract money, and their disappearance in the 70s, when people began counting pennies.

The well operated business, such as McDonald's and Kentucky Fried Chicken, managed their way through the critical period during which Americans assessed this new phenomenon and debated whether or not to support it.

The fast food concept was accepted, despite the seemingly contradictory evidence of thousands of failures, but it was the relatively few well-managed companies that proved the point.

A comparable situation prevailed on Wall Street, where the Merrill Lynches and some smaller, less known but equally well managed brokers continued to make money while scores of others fell into bankruptcy or liquidation.

An examination of the failure of 64 firms in the process of liquidation during 1972 showed these causes:

Poor books and records, noted in the failure of 44 firms; misconduct, 26; high operating costs-poor controls, 21; mismanagement, 28; lack of knowledge of securities conditions, 18; dealing in highly speculative issues, 29.

The study, by the Securities Investor Protection Corp., found that in only 10 instances could "adverse market conditions" be singled out as a cause. All the other reasons qualify under the heading of mismanagement.

The Bank of America maintains that more than 90 per cent of business failures are due to managerial incompetence and inexperience.

Among management errors it listed were downgrading the need for experience, sloppy bookkeeping, reckless money management, failing to plan, misuse of time, inattention to marketing, ignoring the human factor.

The situation that now appears to be developing — a worsening of recession and a continuation of a high degree of inflation — doesn't threaten just a few industries, but all.

Oil price equalization system set

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A program to equalize oil prices throughout the country will be announced by the Ford administration on Tuesday, according to Rep. Robert H. Steele.

The Connecticut Republican said that Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told him that the new program will go into effect Dec. 1.

Steele said utility customers in states that are dependent on high-priced foreign oil have higher bills because of that dependence.

Under the new system, he said oil importers can purchase tickets to buy price-controlled domestic oil at $5.25 per barrel. The tickets can be sold to domestic oil refiners who are now dependent on either high-priced domestic or foreign oil, he said.

The system would enable refiners to buy some oil at between $2 and $3 less per barrel than the current price, he said.

Steele, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, made his comments during a Connecticut Public Television interview show Sunday on which his Democratic opponent, Rep. Ella T. Grasso, D-Conn., also appeared.

Landslide Democrat victory is indicated

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Separate Gallup Polls point to a Democratic landslide in next week's congressional elections and fading support for the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president.

"The latest findings indicate a landslide in the making, with Democratic seat gains likely to be considerably in excess of the normal off-year gains for the party out of power," said Gallup.

In the Sept. 27-Oct. 14 congressional survey of 3,113 adults in 350 locations, 55 per cent of those polled said they would rather see their congressional district won by Democrats.

Thirty-five per cent said they would rather be represented by Republicans, 2 per cent said they prefrred other party candidates and 8 per cent were undecided. The percentages were nearly identical to those Gallup reported three weeks earlier.

Rockefeller's confirmation as vice president was favored by only 44 per cent of Americans, a Gallup Poll taken for Newsweek magazine said. Newsweek said the poll was consistent with two Harris Polls last week that showed dwindling support for Rockefeller.

Newsweek said Sunday that of 553 persons queried by telephone last week, 38 per cent opposed confirmation of the former New York Republican governor with the rest of the respondents undecided.

The first Harris sampling showed Rockefeller's support at 55 to 31 per cent, but backing for the confirmation slipped to a 47-40 per cent tally in the second survey, with the balance undecided.

Asked whether they would like to see Rockefeller become president some day, 25 per cent said they would and 60 per cent said they wouldn't.
